EMPOR. Legasus s.c.

Caput virile gal. s.c.

J'ai beaucoup de Medailles de ce type avec des lettres au revers qui contensient en abregé vraisemblablement les noms des magistrats de ce lieu la. On attribue ordinairement ces sortes de Medailles à la ville d'Espagne du nom qu'elles portent, mais je suis persuade qu'elles ont toutes été fabriqueas en Afrique. Elles ressemblent par la fabrique à celles de Leptis, et je crois qu'elles étoient la monoge de l'endroit qu'on apelle. Emporium.

J. M. Som Skickades tile Herr Varras iladit den 8. April 1831.

Para un montario fe desea recibir de manila, las monedas de cobre que alli circulan, y que se han acunado en las islas Filipinas, pues al parecer no las hay de oro u plato, fino las que irinen de quera, y itas no hacen al caso; pero se noobstante huerine alguna moneda de oro u plata, que efectivamente sueve acunada en las islas Vilipinas, seria sumamente apreciable.

De las dichas monedas de cobre pe desea a tot lo menos una o dos de cada variedad que pe halle, es decir de las que pe diferencian, per por por los objetos que representen en pos dos caras, per en fin por pos inseripciones, o por por perha de mayor o menor antiquiedad. Seria de devear ademas, que las monedas que se traygan, fueren de la onejor conservacion y so menos desgastadas que se puedan encontrar.

Sunctum, et illud crassim, quod litteras inter C et A saepius in istis nummis observavimus, in causa est cur seorsim litteram interpretemur utranque Caesaream Augustam. ad nominis ejusdem distinctionem, turvim Stratonis in Palaestina, quam in Caesaris Augusti honorem iisdem temposibus reaedificavit, ampliavit, et ornavit Herodes dex, non Caesaream Augustam, sed Augustam Caesaream appellavit.

Qui lol urbem vocavit Caesaream. Augustam, atolemaei pater, non illius Jubae, quem vicit Julius Caesar, filius fuit, sed nepos, historiae quidem scriptoribus ignotus, at in nummis etiamnum superstes duos Jubas reges, ejusdem regni consortes, patrem es filium, smul et appallautibus, et repræsentantibus.

REX IVBA. Caput Regis juvenile, diademate invium, sinistros. conversum.
REGIS IVBAE. Caput Regis diademate revincium, brevi, sed dansa basba conspicuum, dextrorium conversum.

Argenteus est.

REX IVBA. Subae patin ceput diadematum, brevi, deniaque barba conspicuum, vinistrorvim convertum, togatis humevis.

R XXXI. Regni anno Trigesimo primo. Caput Jubaz junioris unberbe, cinctum diademate, sinistrorium convertum, togatis humaris.

Ex argento, in therauso degio.

REX 148A. Junioris jubae caput imberbe, diadematum, sinistr. conversum.

R XXXXVIII. Regni anno quadragesimo octavo. Caput Jubae patris

Diademate cinetum, densa brevique barba conspicum, sinistross. conv.

togatis humeris.

Est ex argento, in Muraeo Domin Irofessae Societ. Jesu, Parillis.

REX IVBA REGIS IVBAE F. Caput Subae diademete revinctum, destrorium conversum, togato prettore.

R PTOL A XVII. Lex Itolemaeus. Anno decimo septimo. Expansis alis aquila, sinistrovium conversas palmae ramo insistir.

Es aure magno, in Cimelio III. D. Lebret, et apud D' I Espagnet. Caesaveae vitum et nomen hodiernum in controverisam vocant Geographi recentiores, alus oppidum Jenez ese, alus Alger opinantibus.

VENTA.

Habiendo fallecido en la ciudad de Tarragona el celebre numismático Don José Simons, está de venta su precioso y rico monetario que contiene la coleccion de todos los emperadores romanos, en bronce, cobre, plata y oro, en pequeño, mediano y gran modulo, con algunos duplicados. Abunda en meda-Ilas griegas desde Alejandro el grande inclusive hasta todo el hajo imperio. Es riquisimo en monedas egipcias, fenicias, cartaginesas, celtibéricas, romanas coloniales asi de España como de Francia, y ademas se encuentran en el medallas rarisimas de los primeros tiempos de la monarquia francesa, de reves godos, y otras preciosisimas y raras de diferentes edades del mundo. Todas estas medallas estan clasificadas por el sabio numismático que las poseia, se hallan en buen estado de conservacion y algunas de ellas á flor de cuño. Los inteligentes hallarán tambien una preciosa coleccion de obras nacionales y estrangeras para adelantar en el difícil estudio de la numismática. Ademas de la rica coleccion de medallas hay tambien algunos camafeos de un mérito singular asi por la materia como por la obra. Para tratar del ajuste es preciso dirigirse en Tarragona á Doña Josefa Simons, y en Barcelona á D. Juan Cortada; calle de la Merced , núm. 27.

La lapida sa esta en una sala alta del Castello de esta ciudad, en una canteria, ladeada, sunto a una ventana que mira ab norte, y don de es de noter la palabra caurienso, y la ortografia del unascer.

ha 3ª esta en la bañda oriental del muro, geografica y pon le tanto apreciable.

Le 10° esta en el juelo de la cociond de la casa, en cuyo corral estan las dos anteriores. (contigua ab castello.) Es notable el decir cauriesi como la jegunda del (º Cloret.

ha 170 je encontro cuando las dos últimas. (Al dusha an un poco de muro cornespondiente a la casa de or denandos, continu al Jeminario. ) has O' del 100 min glow, tanto como esto, prances una D. Este parro o dior Seco, a quien cumplo ser voto clarano de Cerico, no se quien es ; sin embargo que debio ser sujeto conocido en este pais, pues en Oro i se, villa siete leguas distanto de aque, se visto una la juisa en la esquina N.O' del muro do sa castillo, que pono constanto, ignoro porsuo, en Presido, q dice aste: Cilius. = (aenonis. f. = Aquelus. - Faeco = v. S. L. H. = Hi en virt do Esseo, disera iteaco en una y en otra lapisa, como leo en sta este instema constanto, claro esta que estaban ambis dedicadas a saco, juet del avenno con Radaman to gertunos; pero yo he visto en las dos con tada distinción saco. El seo tampoco pue den estan didica das, porque entonces divian scho.

ha 18° po halla en el palacio del Duque, en un patio, cencar de una escalera, en frente de la puerta principal, en una canteria larga, embutida en la pares, terminada por arriba en lines curra, con una media luna excavada con los cuernos hacia abajo en que parte superior, y un cinculo y otras indiferentes molduras mas abajo. Las traker tambien, aun que mat, el 3º con: Stanto. La R del 6º renglow parece tambien una T'y una I y en ese caso en vet de decir la legida Siacirum, dira? Diacitium. La D'del mismo renglow no es indudablemente F como pipone constanto; pero la se del mismo parece, aun najor que esto, que escribo porque de otro moto no hace fentido, una O. Bara me es de importancia esto lapira, por hablar dels queblo de los Biacires, de que no tenia noticia; porque Sia: rum es o nominativo o acusativo de fingular, o zeritivo deb plural de Bracires: no quede fer lo 1º, porque debia entonces concertar con Lisira, y esto, pendo esta femenino, y estanho el con con terminación neutro, so puede componente: no lo región co, on que entonces tena que ser alguna cosar que de que dinero hubiera. pecho Sisira a thepina, y siacirum y siacitium, buscados en todos! los diccionarios, veo que no son cosa alguna, sino un nombre por lo tanto propio; luego tiene que per lo 3º, y designan la patria de Pisira, que no es infrecuente que je haga con el genitivo del nombre de la patria, como otras veces fer hace con el mismo nombre en ablativo regido de la preposicion a, y otras por medio de un adjetivo facado del nombre de la natina, por la regular acabado en enfis, y concertado con el nombro del Jujeto, cuga naturalità designa. Nombres de nueblos en plural eran entre los romanos ten frecuentes, que la nayor parte de los que contribuyeron para la fabrica del puente de Alcantara, ettaban en ette caso.

la 20 a esta en las excaleras del calvario, fuera de la audad. ha 1ª letra del 7º renglon efte muy confusa. Ya fo ve que habla de esta ciudad.

It is a most happy occurrence to put an olive branch in the hand of the figure of spain, at a set not only alluder to peace and the manylings in conformity with the legend, but also expresses the symbolic which the romains used for the penson refication of reinspanial: To complete the idea, it may be convenient to and at the feels of the little may be convenient to and at the feels of the little animal called Cuniculus, which is also frequent on domain medals, representing spain.

Eder Sevilla 26 de Mayo 1838.

Mui somio y de mi mayor aprecio: For el sobolatindo ya habra sabido, que he tenido el gusto de recisir suestima a col 11 debactual; y enterado de su contenido me fui antesde ayer en casa del Ser Jayas, para participarle lo que V.E. me dice en punto a su monetario. —

Sero qual fue mi sorpresa, quando dicho Some Dijo que li E. devia haber participado a otro aficcionado de esa, la verita de dicho su monetario, pues el correo anterior sele habia presentado un l'erronage de esta manifestandole una carta ce una persona de alguna suporición a Madrid, en que le dicer que se vea cuanto antes con un tal Jayas, maestro Albanil que dicen tenía de venta un monetario, pidiendole precio y ajustandole en el acto 85 ca

El buen viego se vio de pronto en algun aparo, pues no queria que se sepa que trata de deshacerse de sus monedas antiquas y por otro lado no queria despendiciar una occasion tanfaborable, ni despormer à mi compromelido con V. E. - Asi dió for contestación, que había mudado de parecer y que por ahora no tenia muchas ganas de venderlo is a. Sero este incidente hizo mas soberbio al for Zayas, y asi fue que quando le lei la mayor parte de la citada carta de V.E., me contesto que de ninguna manera cedera el Oro solo sino toto el monetario quento para salir de una vez y no accordarse mas ( a manedas; y solo pasa cumplir su palabra y hacer me favor, me vendera el Oroz la plata junto, pero en faltando Ochavo de lo estipulado en el inventario me podia aharrar el trabajo de escribir y de hablar can el vabre este particular. -Visto esta terquidad mu fui en busca de la Obra In Mionnel para practicar el colejo; pero par falla de vista de parte del Sar Zagas, y mi poca inteligencia, ( despues de haber empleado is horas y media, solo hemos: Pado caro 2 manedas de Oro que estaban avaluadas en dicha Olan a des fre y 56 fre. And el As Jayas' opinaba que entregando sus monedas segun el Valor que les de la dicha Obra, ha de sacar unos 3 à 4/m m

mas, de lo que ha puesto en su Mota, y si antes estaba

envariecido con sus mosedas, mas soberbio se xuso quando vio el Valor que dicho Obra dio à las suyas; y presentandon otro pretendiente, dudo mucho que haremos algo. . En punto al pago, me dio que no entendia de letras si de libranzas, y que aquel à quien entregala su monetario, tenia que darle su Valor en buenas monedas. Sero este punto es el que menos importa, pues yo con muchissimo gusto desembolsare el dinero y V.E. a su mayor comodidad me pueda hacer remesas, deduciendo lo que le estoi en descubierto. -Lo que siento es, que el maertro Bayas no quiere bajar mada de sus prietenciones, y me temo, que n' l'E no resuelve pranto, caera el monetarió en otras manos lo que sentinia mucho; pues todos aficcionados dicen que en punto à Oro es la mejor y la mayor calección que hay en Sevilla y tambien de plata y bronce tiene bastantes min raras y de mucho mensta Ha habra solido que he recivido mi Erquatur dinamasques el que me casto media Onza mas que el de Succia, pues ademas de la Onja que abano eles falindo,

No he defado de buscar algunas monedas para li y no defaria de proporcionarle algunas si yo fuese algo inteligente en esta materia, y si se me escapase alguna de metrito por no entenderlo me seria muy sencible. Il me pudiese remitir como ya he dicho en mi anterior un exemplar de aquel libro que l'tenia cuyo tetulo no me accerdo ó defarlo venir de Francia no dudo poder recoper algunas.

La sin par Doña Dionisia esta recosida a la virtud metido en un convento aguardando el desembargo de su famoro Monetario, que segun noticias que he podido adquirir no tardará mucho, por estar el pleito ion el liguratemiento casi concluido. Tambien dicen que por estar tan bien clanificado no venderá nada suetto sino todo punto por lo que regularmente pedirá un dineral, enfin lo que yo sepa sobre este particular se lo comunicare con muchisimo questo.

Para servir a nuestro comun amigo De Intonio Tenlado me tomo la libertad de incluirle una Noto de algunos Libros de Medicina que desea tener dicho amigo, con suplica de mandarlos compras y mandarlos a mi nombre con la primera ocasion a fustando el porte y con su aviso de abonaremos el importe en la Calorre de la casa, perdonando tanta molestia, y deseo tener alguna ocasion an que poderle ser de alguna intilidad.

Mon cher Monsieur Loriches.

En date du 15 janvier passe p vous cerivis en sous communicant le resultat de mes demarches pourvous procurer des medailles breeques, and mais comme jen ai par recu de reponse, se commence a craindre que ma lettiro avec une que j'envoyais pour Mr Castellanos, ne se soit egares ou bien que votre reponse ne me soit par parvenue.

Dans le premier cas je dois repeten le contenue de la detelettre et vous dire: The je suis alle chez deurs ou trois Just, qui font-rei le commerce de-medailles, et que y'au pour eneffet quantité de medailles Gregues de tous soix. Les Communes sont pour la plupart un petit peu plus cherer que les pris marques par M. Monnet, c'est à dire que quand cet antiquaire les marque à un 1 franc, ondemande un schelling, qui comme vous savez bien n'est par la meme? chore - Du restes ely a des moyens d'acheter) les medaelles tres bon marche dans ser ventes quide font à l'enchere -Man comme dans voke derniere lettre vous ne me dinez. pas, jugu - quelles somme se devais employen pour vous, di fontes ou une parties sentement des medailles marques sur la lute devouent the achetees, atfinalement comment elle dévaient vois être redrences pai en devoir surpendre, forte operation surqu'a fant que vous me faciles our-

Monsieur,

La belle planche de medailles que vous avet graver pour moi, il y a ples de deux ano, etait mal: heureusement trop contente, pour que je pusse futfire à une des: pense egale pour les quelques, 50. dessins, qui ont été priepa. nes. Dennierement on m'a propose un graveur à Sanis, qui faits offnaits la planche, sun cuivre, à 25. france, et j'ai fait exe: cuter deux planches, donts je viens de recevoir les epnecces. Alles wont rearmoins fonts in = fenieures, à la votre, Monvieur, et je prefererai de prayer d'a vantage, et de vous confier toute cette occevre. Do 30 à 150. france, la distance est immen. so, et par consequent je me flatter que vous pounnet faine un grand natais dans la somme primitivo de 150. franco. Veuil. let me repondre avec la même franchise dont j'use envers vous, et remettre votre reponse à Monsieur Oslumm, à la le: gation de Suede it de Nonvige. di bous preferet que notre corres. pondance ait hea par la poste, il faut indispensablement affranchen votre lettre à Taris, mais je vous sie bonifierai tous les frais de port, tant pour voi lettres que pour les miennes.

nin d'un prier moyen pan planche, vous recevnet imme = diatement quatre defoins qui se trouvent dijà à Saris, se trouvent dijà à Saris, sont deux que ont servir pour le dernier essai, et que vous reproduirlt sur acier. apris cela je vous tranomettrai successivement les autres des : vins.

je rous remercie de sotre lettre, it j'accepte toutes ros conditions, it j'accepte toutes ros conditions, excepte celle qui exige un delai excepte celle qui exige un delai excepte celle qui exige un delai en de plus de plus de planches. Cette tiere une attente trop longue pour un sexagenaire mala dif comme moi. sexagenaire mala dif comme moi. se faut fixen cette livraison à la fin de 1346. Une planche pas semaire ne paraît pas exorbitant semaire ne paraît pas exorbitant. Du reste je suis d'accord avec rous pour pagen chaque planche rous pour pagen chaque planche de franco de l'acien. Mais comme il me fena difficile d'eviter qu' il n'y ait des planches a moitie vides, sous me fenet un napat proportionnel proun celles- cit, qui senont en petit nombre. He s'entend que je pagenai toujours les 8. francs de l'acien, quand même il n'y aurait que deux médailles sur le planche.

aunet toute la gravano sans exception, tant qu'elle auna le nême menite que celle que boas avet deja executée. Il y aura quelques cartes geographiques, dont nous traiterons plus tard, si vous voult vous en charger.

meter us dessins asset à temps pour que sous ne soyet pas pour que sous ne soyet pas arrête dans sous remeterais, et Mr. Delumn sous remeterais à l'are rivée de la presente les qua : tre planches dessinces par Mr. sensi, que j'avais envoyees à l'aris par un artiste supagnol, Mr. Candenera. Je sous prie de les commencer tout le suite, et suntout l'une de celles contenant de petites me dailles es argent, car Mr. Sensi est très deli : cat sun ce point et les ine qu'illes rejondent au soin qu'il y a mis, rejondent au soin qu'il y a mis,

The Common Don Gustavus Societés Envoy Plenipotenting from this Swedish-elegisty at the Coast of Madrid. Jan. 26. The President, Professor H.

H. Wilson, in the chair.

John Hampden, esq. James Cove Jones, esq. David Henry, esq. and W. Sandys Wright Vaux, esq. were elected Members, and Senor Don Gustavus Lorick, Envoy Plenipotentiary from his Swedish Majesty at the Court of Madrid, Senr. Don Basilio Sebastian Castellanos, President of the Archæological Society of Spain, and Senr. Don Vicente Bertran de Lis y Rives, of Valencia, were elected Associates.

The Rev. H. Christmas, M.A. F.R.S. read an address to the Society from the President and Council of the Archæological Society of Spain, offering the services of the Society in the promotion of numismatic science.

Mr. C. R. Smith exhibited a secondbrass coin from the cabinet of H. Vint, esq. lately found in Colchester. It is of Antoninus Pius, rev. "Britannia," and differs from the usual type of that emperor, with this reverse, the head being radiated instead of laureated.

The President then read an elaborate paper addressed to him by Lieut. A. Cunningham, of the Bengal Engineers, on the ancient coinage of Kashmir, with chronological and historical notes, and illustrated with numerous drawings of coins, many of them unpublished.

Most of the coins described were found by Lieut. Cunningham, since 1839, at Bij-Bihára, one of the oldest towns in Kashmir. They form a series more extensive than any yet known, being, in fact, the coinage of an independent state for fifteen centuries, and add considerably to the mass of oriental numismatic information published by the late Mr. James Prinsep.

The earliest coins which the author attributes, with certainty, to the kings of Kashmir, belong to the first Indo-Scythian Princes, OHPKI, Hoerki or Hushka, and KANHPKI, Kanerki or Kanishka. They were Buddhists, and founded cities named after themselves, of which Hushkapur was existing so late as A.D. 958, and Kanishkapur exists to the present day.

It is curious, the author observes, that the silver coinage, which is so common with the Bactrians, should altogether cease with the Indo-Scythians; and, vice-versa, that the gold coinage, of which only two specimens of the Bactrians are now known, should become so common with their successors. This subject seems elucidated by the following facts, recorded by the author of the Periplus of the Erythræan Sea, (about 63 A.D.) The first is, that Roman denarii, both of gold and silver, were exchanged with advantage against the gold coin of Lydia called Kaltis. No Indian silver coinage is mentioned, but the want of a silver currency is fully explained by the second fact, which is, that the drachmas of Apollodotus and Menander were even then current at Barygaza. This last fact most satisfactorily accounts for the non-existence of Indo-Scythian silver coinage, and also for the present abundance of the drachmas of Menander, many of which were found at Jelalabad, and used as card counters by the officers in Affghanistan!

The description of the coins of which sketches were exhibited to the meeting, was prefixed by a revised chronological list of the sovereigns of Kashmir from the Christian æra, in which the received chronologies of Professor Wilson* and Mr. Prinsep† are, in some points, altered.

With the drawings of coins was exhibited a sketch of a stone figure of Parvati, the wife of Siva, found amongst the ruins near the Sarnath tope, near Benares. This figure, both with respect to position and costume, seems identical with that on several of the coins, where, in the European fashion, a female richly arrayed is seated on a high-backed chair, as Parvati is also depicted on the earlier Gupta coins.

The obverse of these coins presents a male figure clad in what appears to be a complete suit of chain armour, with a Tartar cap on his head, a spear in his left hand, and pointing to a small cylindrical object, which the author conjectures to be a golden casket containing a relic of Buddha, similar to those found in the

The legend on one of these coins is PAO NANO PAO KANHPKI ECPANO. "The King of Kings, Kanerki, Korano." On the coins of Kadaphes Zathus this title is written KOPAN CY, which the author reads as XOPANov EYyyevovs, the kinsman, or the descendant of Koran, which would appear to be the name or title of some prince from whom these Indo-Scythians were proud to trace descent. The Greek KOPONIE, " with curling horns," and the Arabic Zulkarnein, or "lord of the horns," both point to Alexander the Great, and the author interprets the term Korano to mean a descendant of Alexander. The Indo-Scythian Kadphizes claims to be a "relative of the Saviour King Hermæus." His name in the Ariano-Pali language is in the same characters as the name of Kadaphes Zathus, which leads the author to infer they are one person, and that a claim to the descent from Alexander was set up through the connexion with the Greek King Hermæus, one of Alexander's successors in the East.

Pero temo empeñar a li en una molesminuexos directa con el país o sen cercamas.

De M. Mollin, can quien tengo correspondencia, he recibido algunos articulos raros, y el me ha debido tambien otros mas o menos comunes, y envisoros. A lo menos en la Jerie consular de he provisto de todo mi displicado, que escedia segurante de mas de suit pieras en plata bien conservada. Ahora siento sivamente no habes tenido el honor de bratar a U antes, para habes puesto a ser disposicion muchos objetos entre los cuales sin duda habria U encontrado algunos que le hutien run hecho cuenta. Me coge U mui atrasado, de ria que he sido en duplicaciones, y esta es la causa de mo poder ofrecer a l'en este momento sino una sola letra de la familia Thoria, cual es la A., que so anueque tengo todo el alfabelo de esta familia, careres de otra letra duplicada. To Tambien tango huecos en alfabetos de otras familias como la Ponteya &, pero esto será objeto de una lista que parare a U oportunamente.

Poreo los sucolallones de Cadir que estampa y especia el Maestro Flores, y aun otro meditos, especialmente, uno de Agripa sentado en sila turnt i annque podre disponer de algano, igmoro si la vendra bien, i por eso omito oficionelo hasta que U me pose lista de los que le falten 7 ya que
V. se tame la molestio de arreglar era lista puede V hacaria estensiva à las demas Geograficas que busca

Por de contado no puedo ofrecerle la Myrtilis que V desea, pero unebro a en cargarba a Portugal, sin embargo de que oludo que esta medalla dea de Mertola a cuyo pueblo la reduce Sestini.

Tampos tengo contorniatos de que noder disponer, pero así de estos, como de la Myrtelis, y de las letras de la Fhoria temo anunte para ofrecesselas a V. luego que me caigan.

Ves que V. no ha podido favorecerme con ningun artículo de los comprendidos en mi Nota de caberas raras por no tenerlo en su duplicado; pero admito i agradesco da promesa que me hase de tomas para mi cualquier medalla de esta clase que le caiga en adelante, de cuyo valor le sabré indemnirar inmediatamentes

Pues V. abunda en typos griegos le incluyo nota de los medallones de plata que poseo en esa derie, paso si V puede disponer de alguna otra cabera que yo no tenga. Mi serie mas copissa y bella es la clousular de plata en la que mento mas de 700 vaniedades no publicadas fi Morelio. Sui embar que para completar todo el sistema menetario de este antor han de faltannie todavia mias 200 pieras de que tendre ocasion de enviar à V. nota por si l'Indiere desvirme con algun duplicado. Ti entretanto de que tendre vicana lista delsuyo signiera en laserie di plata misperial y Cousular, me seria facil designar con presencia de el lo que pudiera comenir me salva la indemniración competente a ley de africonado.

d'etre ordonne comme il conviendroit: --

Les mérailles des Avis goths en on ow en argent le réduisent à un très petit nombre; il n'y a point de doubles et aucune des Rois que vous me nommet. Il en est de même des regnes antérieurs aux Rois catholiques, il n'en existe qu'une de Pierre de Castille et une autre de Jéan que je crois être le pecond du nom. Il y a plusieurs monnaies en on de Ferdinand et siabelle, mais aucune de Philippe I., ni même en argent. S'entetre quand j'examinerai le cuivre en trouvrais- je de ce lai, mais vraisemblablement elles peront pans pa tite. Lucune d'on ni de Philippe II. ni de houis I'm et une feule cinquantaine de Philippe IV.

hes medailles antiques des Colonies et Municipes Depagnols sont en plus grand nombre, mais generalement il y a très peu de doubles en bon état, et encore ce sont les plus communes. Je n'y vois donc rien qui soit digne de vous être offert; aucun encien cabinit n'est venu se fondre dans celui-ci, et il ne s'est composé que des dons très mesquins de quelques particuliens ou de monnaies jettées dans les bassins des églises. L'histoine nous fait connaître plesseurs dons que furent offerts aux rechives de cette capitale par des antiquaires illustres qui avaient forme de vattes collections. Tout cela a dispare et on n'en

Dido à s. el permiso de presentarle una cuestion historiea. Thace algunos años que las indagaciones en los anales do nuestra Tatria se han atraido un vivo intenes, y varios sabios jovenes y celosos se ocupan de la reunion de materiales, tanto en los anchivos del pais como en los extrangeros. Se ha creido que los despachos que fueron expedidos por Don Antonio Pimentel durante su estancia en Sucia como Ambajador do Regoaña cerca de la Reina Cristina, por los años de 1650, gradrian dan mucha lut sobre il neinado y las rela: ciones privadas de vota Princesa singular y en muchas partes enigmatica, pues se sabe que Timentel que su confidente y su consejers mas externs. Denia por consiguiente muy interesante de obtener copias de sus despachos durante todo el tiempo que estubo en contacto con la Reina. Como el espacio de dos siglos nos separaran pronto de dicha ejoca, parece que los Archiveros cornespon: dientes de Madrid no pueden tenen ningun neparo en permitin que se tomen las copias. Si una permision semejante se puede obtenen por los buenos oficios de N., seria un vendadeno sen. vicio por el que nuestras historiognafos le que: darian à V. obligados. El coste de las copias Jera restituido por mi con agradicamiento. Pruego à V. que tenga la bondad de informanme con algunas palabras de la posibilidad de lognar un exito felit en exte asunto.

Nota. Como es probable que dichos despachos se hallen ya en el archivo de Simancas, el in:

NATIONAL MEDALS:

THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENTS

DURING THE REIGN OF

ISSUED IN UNIFORM SIZES, ON THE ABOVE SCALE,

Price in Bronze, 15s.; Bronze Gilt, £1. 11s. 6d.; and Silver, £3. 3s.

LONDON:

GRIFFIN AND HYAMS, SILVERSMITHS AND JEWELLERS, 22, CORNHILL, OPPOSITE THE ROYAL EXCHANGE.

That particular Branch of Art to which the production of Medals belongs, has in modern times been so neglected, as to render the number of such productions extremely limited, and the expense attending their possession so considerable, as entirely to place them beyond the reach of those whose taste and inclination would have led them to become the possessors of Monuments of History so pleasing and imperishable.

It is, therefore, with the view of rendering, at a moderate cost, a few specimens of the Medallist's Art, available to all portions of the British community, that a Series of Splendid Medals has been commenced, which will record some of the greatest National Events in the Reign of HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY, QUEEN VICTORIA, and hand down to posterity, a Memorial of feature, time, and circumstances, which will, from their perfect durability, defy the commotion of distant ages, or even the rude finger of Time to destroy.

In this Series the primary object of the Publishers will be, to illustrate such events as may be deemed worthy of commemoration during—as it is hoped—a long and prosperous Reign; and they confidently appeal to the Public for countenance and support in this their endeavour to revive a long and much neglected Branch of Art. Artists of the first celebrity will be employed to make this Series of Medals, worthy a place in the Cabinets of the Sovereigns of Europe, in the various National Museums, and in the Collections of the Nobility, Gentry, and Virtuosi of all Nations.

The Medals have been issued in the respective order of the events they are intended to perpetuate, and may be had in one case, complete, or separately.

The Subjects that have already been executed, being the First Four of the Series, are the following, in Brouze, Brouze Gift, Silver, and Gold:

L-ACCESSION MEDAL.

The obverse has a fine Profile of Her Majesty, with a Diadem encircling her youthful brow, emblematical of the three Kingdoms. On the reverse a Legend of her Accession to the British Throne, encompassed with Oak Leaves, &c.

H.-THE CITY MEDAL.

The same obverse as the preceding is on this Medal. On the reverse is a beautiful Allegorical Design of Her Majesty receiving the Civic Sword from the hands of the Lord Mayor, together with appropriate symbols, and the figures of Britannia, Pame, and Plenty with her Cornucopia. Legend: "In Commemoration of Hea Majestr's Visit to the City of Lordon, November 9th, 1837."

III.-ROYAL EXCHANGE MEDAL.

The obverse represents the Royal Exchange, prior to its destruction by Fire on the night of Wednesday, January 10th, 1838. The reverse is part of a frieze, from the southern portion of the building, at the base of the tower, and records the memorable interview of Queen Elizabeth with Stu Thomas Gressian, attended by her heralds and suite, "Proclatming the Burse to be called the Royal Exchange for ever."

IV .- CORONATION MEDAL.

The obverse of this Medal has a Bust and correct Likeness of the Queen, arrayed in her Coronation Robes, holding the Sceptre with the Cross in her right hand, wearing on her head King Edward's Crown, decorated also with the Ribbon, Order of St. George, and other Imperial Ornaments. The reverse represents Her Majesty walking under m Canopy of State, as she appears when leaving the Throne at the conclusion of the extensory, which Canopy has on former occasions been borne by the Wardens of the Cinque Ports, who appear on the Medal in their Robes of Dignity, Coronets, &c. The Legend is as follows: "Victoria Queen of England, Chowned June 28th, 1838."

SUBSCRIBERS will please to signify their Commands to Messrs. GRIFFIN and HYAMS, No. 22, CORNHILL, or No. 148 REGENT STREET, in writing, stating the description desired, and Copies will be forwarded immediately, as the first Proofs are now ready for delivery.

Prices as follows:

For convenience of Subscribers at the West End, Mr. SAMS, Bookseller to the Queen, No. 1, St. James's Street, has the Medals on sale, and will receive orders.

A las 11 de la mañana del dia de ayer se presentó en esta un parlamentario francés acompañado de diez lanceros y un oficial y pusieron en manos del señor comandante general los oficios y artículos siguientes:

Señor Brigadier. = Tengo el honor de dirigiros con la carta de S. E. el Sr. general en gefe Ballesteros, copia del convenio que ha hecho con S. E. el Sr. general en gefe Conde de Molitor.

Yo he pensado, señor Brigadier, antes de emprender nada contra sus tropas deber haceros esta comunicacion, persuadido de que conociendo todas las ventajas del convenio del General Ballesteros, y queriendo como S. E. señalar un término á los males que acompañan inevitablemente la guerra, aceptará para V., las tropas y las plazas de vuestro distrito todos los articulos citados del dicho convenio, el Sr. Conde de Tillí mi ayudante de campo encargado de entregaros la presente, está tambien autorizado para firmar en mi nombre todas las garantías que el encierra. Yo ruego de agregar las seguridades de la alta consideración, igualmente que tengo el honor de ser, Sr. Brigadier, vuesto obediente servidor, el Teniente General de los egércitos del Rey, Comandante de la vanguardia del 2.º cuerpo, = Vicente de Bonnemains, = Cuartel general de Baza 16 de agosto de 1823.

Carta del Señor Ballesteros. = General en gese del 29 egército de operaciones. = Remito á V. S. una copia de la convencion que he hecho con el conde de Molitor, General en gese del segundo cuerpo del egército frances: si V. S. con las tropas de su mando quisieran disfrutar de las seguridades que la misma ofrece, haciendo cesar los males que afligen á los pueblos por las partidas que bajo pretesto de oponerse á V. S. no causan mas que danos y vejaciones á sus pacíficos habitantes, podrá entenderse con el teniente general Bonemains, por cuyo conducto dirijo á V. S. este oficio, en la inteligencia que disfrutarán esas tropas de igual beneficio que las del egército de mi mando. = Dios guarde á V. S. muchos años. Cuartel general de Orce 15 de agosto de 1823, = Francisco Ballesteros. = Sr. D. Bernardo de Guendulain.

Convenio entre el teniente general conde de Molitor, comandante en gefe del 2.º cuerpo del egército de los Pirineos autorizado por S. A. R. el duque de Angulema, y el teniente general don Francisco Ballesteros general en gese del 2.º egercito de operaciones.

Att. 1.º El general Ballesteros y el 2.º egército á sus ordenes reconocen la autoridad de la regencia de España, establecida en Madrid durante la ausencia del Rey.

2.º El dicho general ordenará á los generales y gobernadores de las plazas situadas en la estension de su mando, que reconozcan igualmente la autoridad de la regencia.

3.º Las tropas á las órdenes del general Ballesteros, tomarán los acantonamientos que se han determinado de concierto con el general Molitor.

4.º Los generales, gefes y oficiales que pertenecen al 2.º egército conservarán sus grados, empleos, distinciones y los sueldos asignados á dichos empleos.

5.º Ningun individuo del dicho 2º egército podrá ser inquietado ni perseguido por sus opiniones anteriores á la presente convencion, ni por los hechos que tengan relacion con ellas, esepto los de la competencia de la justicia ordinaria.

6.º El sueldo será pagado por la tesorería de España bajo el pie establecido; en çaso de retardo ó de imposibilidad se continuará dando las raciones de etapa bajo el mi-mo pie en los partidos que sean designados para su acantonamiento.

7.º Los individuos de la milicia pertenecientes á dicho 2.º egército que quieran volver á sus hogares, podrán hacerlo libremente y encontrarán seguridad y proteccion.

8.º En consecuencia de la presente convencion las hostilidades cesarán al momento por una y otra parte. Granada 4 de agosto de 1823.=Por el general Ballesteros y con sus plenos poderes.=El primer ayudante general de E. M. =José Guerrero ae Torres. = El general Molitor. = Es traduccion del original, = Gaspar Herrera, Srio, = Es copia = Guendulain. (Oficina de José Santamaria.)

"The Encyclopædia Britannica-a publication well worth your having."

WIEBERFORCE'S LETTER TO PITT, LIFE, Vol. III. p. 14.

ON THE 1st OF JANUARY, 1841, WAS COMMENCED,

TO BE CONTINUED MONTHLY,

A NEW PUBLICATION

ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA,

Seventh Edition,

In complete Volumes, price 2l. half-bound in russia extra, with marbled leaves.

EDITED BY PROFESSOR NAPIER.

The republication of this great National Repertory of Universal Knowledge was commenced on the First of January, and will be continued, without interruption, at the rate of a Volume Monthly, till its completion.

VOLS. II. and III. are now ready.

Among other important Articles, contributed by Writers of the most distinguished reputation in their several departments, these Volumes contain:—

ABACUS, ACHROMATIC GLASSES, ACOUSTICS, AERONAUTICS, and ANDES, by Sir John Leslie.—Academies, Apparitions, and Army, by James Browne, L.L.D.—Adhesion, by Dr. Thomas Thomson, Professor of Chemistry in the University of Glasgow.—Ætna and Alps, by Robert Jameson, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Edinburgh.—Africa, by Sir John Barrow, one of the Secretaries to the Admirally.—Agriculture, by James Clegnorn, Esq.—Algebra, by Professor Wallace.—Alpharet and Antiquities, by T. J. Hoge, Esq.—America, by Charles Maclaren, Esq. F.R.S.E.—Annualcule and Arachnides, by James Wilson, Esq., F.R.S.E.—Annuities, by Joshua Milne, Esq., Actuary to the Sun Life Assurance Society.—Art and Apparent M. Roget, M.D., Secretary to the Royal Society.—Architecture, by Wm. Hosking, F.S.A., Architect and Civil Engineer, Professor of the Arts of Construction in King's Collège, London.—Aristotelian Philosophit, by the Rev. Professor Hampden, of Oxford.—Artillery, by Capt. Spearman.—Fine Arts, by William Hazlitt, Esq.—Asia, by David Buchanan, Esq.—Assaying, by Robert Mushet, Esq., late of the Royal Mint.—Astronomy, by Thomas Galloway, M.A. F.R.S., Secretary of the Royal Astronomical Society, &c. &c.

The Encyclopædia Britannica forms an Alphabetical Repertory of every branch of Human Knowledge. It was the first work of its class which aspired to embrace all the departments of learning—to render the Alphabet a ready Key, not only to the Arts and Sciences, but to the multiplied details of History, Biography, Geography, and Miscellaneous Literature; and it was also the first in which the Sciences themselves were treated in a form at once consistent with Alphabetical Arrangement and Systematic Exposition.

It has been the leading object of its conductors to combine abstract with practical, and solid with pleasing information, in such proportions as would be most useful and most acceptable to the public—to deliver the truths of Science in the most acceptable to the public to those branches of knowledge, which, though not admitting of a scientific shape, are yet deservedly popular, and have a powerful influence on the taste, habits, and character of the individual,—in a word, to render the work at once a Distiguisher of Science, a copious Abstract of Literature and Philosophy, and a Book of Universal Reference. Of their success in carrying this plan into effect, it is scarcely necessary to speak. The publication of Six Editions, with successive improvements, and the sale of upwards of Thirty Thousand Copies, afford unequivocal proofs of the high estimation in which the work has hitherto been held; while the peculiar merits of the present Edition, remodelled in all its departments, and enriched with some of the most celebrated disquisitions which have adorned the literature of the nineteenth century, have given the Eucyclopædia Britansics so decided a preference in public favour, that its popularity, instead of suffering diminution from rivalship, has steadily continued to increase, and never stood higher than at the present time.

In Paper, Typography, and beauty of Embellishment, as well as in the Literary value of its contents, the present Edition is very far superior to all which have preceded it. An Index, elaborately compiled, for the purpose of affording easy reference to the diversified contents of the work, will afford a new and most valuable feature in the present Edition. The style of binding combines elegance with durability; and to those who desire to possess, at a moderate price, and within reasonable limits, a useful and comprehensive library of Works in the various departments of Science, Literature, Philosophy, the Arts, Manufactures, Commerce, Statistics, and General Knowledge,—digested on a plan which renders their universal contents easily accessible,—the present Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is confidently recommended.

A Personal Narrative of a Journey to the Source of the River Oxus, by the Route of the Indus, Kabul, and Badakhshan, performed under the Sanction of the Supreme Government of India, in the years 1836, 1837, and 1838. By Lieut. John Wood, Murray.

THE survey of the Indus, of whose giant course we have had till lately a very imperfect knowledge, was the interesting and important task assigned to Lieut. Wood, in the early part of that journey, the personal narrative of which he now presents to us under a modest title hardly adequate to explain its value. In 1832, the Anglo-Indian Government prevailed on the rulers of Sind to throw open the commerce of the river Indus. Thus access was obtained for the trader to the Panjab, or country of the Five Rivers; to the kingdom of the Seikhs, Lahore, and Kashmir; to say nothing of the commerce of the right bank of the Indus. In 1835 the survey of the coast of Sind and the mouths of the Indus was completed. The first who tried his fortune in the new field thus opened for enterprise, was Agha Mohammed Rahim, a Persian merchant of Bombay, who fitted out for the Indus a small steamer, of which our author took the command. This adventure being concluded, Lient. Wood remained in Sind to observe the periodical changes of the river; and, returning to Bombay in 1836, was immediately attached to the mission of Sir Alex. Burnes, about to proceed to Kabul,-the completion of the survey of the Indus, from the junction of the Panjab rivers to Attock, being specially intrusted to him. So many accounts of Sind and the Panjab have been published of late years, that we need not dwell on observations relative to those countries, but shall confine ourselves to the river. The Indus proves, on examination, to be an almost impracticable stream. Yet its ancient fame being supposed to warrant its magnitude and accessibility, a scheme of a joint-stock steam company to navigate its waters, was set on foot in 1834; and it was proposed to station an old East Indiaman, as a depôt, within the mouth of the river: the fact being, as our author states, that no vessel of that class can approach within sight of the coast of Sind, much less cross the bars and enter the river. He thus cuts away the ground from beneath many a towering prospectus:"We now, at least, know what the Index is not, and even this negative information may prevent much disappointment. * * Proper vessels are now upon the Indus, and its capabilities for steam-navigation will be made the most of; but we cannot help re-minding such of our Indian friends as are interested in the subject, that not only are the native craft of the river well suited to its peculiarities, but are also equally adapted to the commerce for which the Indus now is, or will shortly become, the highway. In con-clusion, we may remark, that there is no known river in either hemisphere, discharging even half the quantity of water that the Indus does, which is not superior for navigable purposes to this far-famed stream. In this practical age the beauty of a river is measured by its utility; and although few people could sail without emotion upon the waters that once bore the bark of Alexander, there are numbers who would willingly give up all its classic associations, could they, by so doing, obtain for it the clear channel of an American stream."

The native vessels on the Indus, exclusive of mere boats, amount to about 800; but we are not sure whether this number includes the craft navigating the accessory streams of the Panjab.

of expectation, cannot fail, under a wise government, to give a great impulse to the industry of the surrounding country. The peculiarity of the Indus is, that, when flooded, it is constantly shifting its channel, and the banks washed away are deposited at the mouths of the river, the channels and bars of which are undergoing perpetual change. The noise of the falling in of the banks is, in some localities, heard without intermission. Long tracts of fertile land, with their villages, are swept away every season. But if we suppose that the stream now allowed to riot so mischievously, were confined within solid embankments, judiciously placed by skilful engineers, then its floods would clear away all the encumbrances of its channel, and the Induswould become a river of easy access. Nor is it absurd to look forward to such a change. the age of railways, we must not shrink at the thought of rearing a huge embankment. But of the flood to be bridled and led along, some idea may be formed from the following descriptive passage of our author :-

" Having reached the mountains, I shall close this chapter with a few general remarks on that division of the Indus which lies between Mittun-kote and Kalabagh, a portion of its course yet little known. The season, it should be remembered, in which we voyaged, was that of the river's periodical rise, and the temperature of February does not differ more from that of July, than the shrunken stream of the one month from the full channel of the other. At some places, so diffused was the stream, that from a boat in its centre no land could be discovered, save the islands upon its surface, and the mountains on its western shore. From Dhera Ismael Khan to Kalabagh, the east bank was not once seen from the opposite side of the river, being either obscured by distance, or hidden by intervening islands, which, at this season, thickly speckle over its channel. Some are level with the water's edge, while others below it are only known by their sedgy covering. In other months, they ere the resort of the inhabitants from both shores, many of whom, delighted with their both stores, many of whom, delighted with their fine pasturage, prolong their stay till disledged by the rising river. Such laggards I have seen caught, and have enjoyed a hearty laugh at their unceremonious removal. When this is about to happen, the in-mates are soon astir. The young men go in search of the cattle, while others speedily unroof the read-built cot, and transport such part of its materials as may be useful in the erection of their new habitation a boat which they take care to have at hand, Between this vessel and the hamlet, parties may be seen hurrying to and fro, with bundles on their heads, their arms filled with children and carthen jars, and tragging rafters and other fragments of their houses after them. But in this month (July), the islands are abandoned, and, as the boat swiftly glides amicst the mazy channels that intersect them, no village cheers the sight—no human voice is heard; the only sound is the plover's meaning call as it hovers above the falling bank, and dexterously seizes its prey while yet in the air, or skims it off the water. Here and there a boiling eddy rises to the surface, and even the wild swirl of its gushing, turbid current, is mateful to the ear amidst the profound stillness. A small grey speckled bird, that loves the water, nestles on these half-drowned islands, hanging its neatly constructed little nest to the top of a as nearly observation while nest to the top of a flexile grassistalk, and rears its young in security, when all is fooded beneath and around it. Lower down the riter, about the vicinity of Mittun-kote, the low same reliands that disappear before the first wave of inuntation, are, in the spring months, stud-ded with the easy of the plover. The bird's unfailing instinct the beautifully exemplifies the truth of Solomon's words, that for everything there is a season, and time for every purpose under the heavens. At the eye wanders round, clumps of seeming treesedge the horizon. These may be plantations around villages on the high bank, or Talli trees in the river's bed, which the stream has re-At all events, such an extensive system of navigable waters, however incapable of floating East for all that blessoms here; or perhaps they are only Indiamen, or though it may otherwise fall short bushes magnifed by the atmosphere. The sun rises, the mirage is broken, and the last suspicion proves correct. Out of sight of land, the voyager may for hours be floating amid a wilderness of fields, and when he supposes himself far from man, is sometimes startled at hearing a human voice from amid the expanse of rushes which surround him. It is the solitary bulrush-gatherer, who, with only his mussuk for support, braves all the dangers of the stream to procure the root of the bulrush for food for himself and his little ones. These people resort to such islands as are within a foot of being submerged, and stationing themselves on the windward edge, seize hold of the rushes when detached by the action of the stream; nor does a plough turn up a furrow with greater precision than the current's surging wave slices down these ever-changing islands."

The population of the banks of the Indus is nearly amphibious. Bathing at all times of the day is the favourite pastime of both sexes. Great herds of buffaloes are occasionally to be seen crossing the river with much uproor, the herdsman holding the leader by the tail. The ma-jestic stream is the great highway on which all classes, bestriding the mussuk, or inflated skin, go abroad in pursuit of business or pleasure. Our author says,

"The boatmen of Lower Sind live, like the Chinese, in their boats. If a native of the Lower Indus has occasion to cross the stream, a pulla-jar wafts him to the opposite shore. At Blikur the messuk supersedes the pulla-jar, and from Mittua-Kote upwards every man living near the river has one. Kassids so mounted make surprising journeys, and the soldier with sword and matchlock secured across his shoulders thus avoids the fatigue of a long march. But the Hindú most enjoys the Indus, and delights to sport in its stream. advance up the river, the more manifest does his predilection for its waters become. At Attock the very hoadinen are many of them Hindús,—an employment quite foreign to Brahma's followers in the lower course of the Indus. The Sunday :musement of this class is to wanton in its waters. Confined to of this class is to wanton in its waters. Commed to their shops throughout the week, with them the seventh day is one of relaxation and enjoyment. Early in the forenoon they repair to the river or canal, and there upon their mussuks float and talk till sunset. I have seen in one group a father and two children, the latter on dried elongated gourds, clinging to their parent, who bestrode a good-sized Close to them came two grey-haired men apparently hugging each other, for they rode upon the same inflated skin, which, but for the closeness with which they embraced, it would have soon parted company, Next came sailing down an individual lying much at his ease, between the four legs of a huge buffalo's hide, while hoys moved in all directions, mounted as they best could, some on gourds, and some on skins.

From Kalabagh to Attock, a distance of eighty or ninety miles, the Indus can hardly be said to be navigable. It is true, that Lieut. Wood descended the stream from Attock in a boat, and that at certain seasons boats may be dragged up against the current; but this passage is so dangerous, owing to the falls and eddies of the river confined in a narrow and rocky channel, that it is not likely to be ever frequented. The depth of the river at Attock, where there is a bridge of boats, was found, by our author, to be ten fathoms. Burnes, whose testimony on this point we always suspected, stated the depth of the river there to be thirty-five fathoms. From Attock to Mittun-Kote, a distance of 400 miles, no river of any importance joins the Indus. The numerous streams descending from the mountains of Tukht es Suleïmán on its right bank, are all intercepted and spent in irrigation, long before they reach the bottom of the valley.

In the vicinity of the Indus are to be found salt, coal, iron, and sulphur, so that the mineral treasures alone of the country might be expected to give rise to an active commerce. But these would prove under a good government a for less copious source of national wealth, than the industry of Kashmir and the other countries of the Panjab. Our author, casting his eyes on the snowy mountains, beneath which flows the river of Kabul, has discovered another natural product, deserving, as he conceives, the attention of the enterprising trader. He observes, that among the many advantages likely to accrue to Western India, from the opening of the Indus, not the least important in the estimation of the inhabitants of Bombay, will be the prospect of a constant supply of ice. This is sold in the markets of Jelalabad, from which place there is an uninterrupted navigation by rafts, or boats, to the mouth of the Indus. The time required for the transport of ice from the neighbourhood of the White Mountains to Bombay, would not exceed a month.

With respect to the political doings of the mission to Kabul, our author observes a discreet silence. His proper office was to survey and gather geographical information; and for this purpose he obtained permission to visit the valley of Koh Daman, lying north of Kabul, and celebrated as the garden of the principality. He remarks in general, that in Afghanistan and the valleys of Hindoo Koosh, the arts of cultivation are far advanced, and much labour is expended on the soil, even in districts inhabited by professional robbers, and which rarely enjoy perfect peace. From Khyber to Kabul there is no waste land; every spot capable of producing has been turned over by plough or spade; and so great is the command of water, that even the acclivities of the hills enclosing the small circular valleys, are successfully cultivated. It is not an uncommon thing there, to see a stream of water conducted along the face of the hills, forty feet above the level plain; and when rivulets are wanting, shafts are sunk, and the water of the wells is led along in subterranean galleries. But Koh Daman, into which open three or four narrow valleys from the Hindoo Koosh, stands eminent in fertility as well as in romantic scenery. It is the favourite country residence of the wealthy inhabitants of Kabul, and is almost as thickly studded with castles as with gardens. These strongholds resemble, on a small scale, the baronial mansions of Europe in the Middle Ages. Near neighbours are generally deadly enemies; violent fends rage in every valley, and nothing can allay these petty animosities but national war, or the employment afforded by distant Fruit is the chief produce of Koh Daman. Its grapes, apricots, peaches, almonds, mulberries, &c. are imported into India. The mulberry, not in a wild state, but planted by the hand of man, is seen everywhere throughout Afghanistan; and in the higher valleys of the Hindoo Koosh, it becomes the chief object of the husbandman's care; the coarse flour made from its unripe fruit, constituting in those regions the staple article of subsistence.

From Koh Daman our author was recalled to join a mission about to be despatched to the valley of the Osus. Murad Ali Beg, the formidable ruler of Kunduz, had sent to solicit for his brother, who was afflicted with severe ophthalmia, the assistance of the Hakim firingi, or European physician. So favourable an opportunity of conciliating the friendship of the rapa-cious chieftain of Kunduz was not to be lost; and accordingly Dr. Lord, accompanied by our author, immediately started on the journey, taking the road through Koh Daman and Parwan, to the pass of the Hindoo Koosh bearing the latter name. But the season was too far advanced (it was the beginning of November,) to allow the passage over this great range. After much toil and suffering the party were obliged to retrace their steps, and take the circuitous but safe road by Bamian, which had been already travelled by Burnes and others. An Afghán gentleman, however, who, in a fit of ill-humour, had withdrawn himself from Dr. Lord's party, and tried the pass of Ghorbund, some miles to the west of that of Parwan, perished with four attendants, in the snow storm which drove back the Europeans.

Of the country between Kabul and Kunduz, ample descriptions may be found in the volumes of Moorcroft, Wolff, and Burnes. Our author's portrait of the chief, however, is a more favourable, and perhaps a truer likeness, than those drawn by his precursors, and shall, therefore, be exhibited to our readers :-

"Murad Beg is one of those prominent political characters that unsettled times, and a disorganized state of society produce. Such were Mohamed Ali in Egypt and the late Ranjeet Singh in Hindustan: men whose fortunes were based on mental superiority; and though Murad Beg cannot be ranked with either of these remarkable men, the Uzbek will not suffer by comparison with them, when we take into account the rudeness of the material on which he had to work. Little craft enters into the character of this chieftain, but to his splendid talents he unites what does not always accompany them, strong common sense. His forces, composed entirely of cavalry, are well adapted to predatory warfare, for which neither infantry nor guns are essential. The horses, though small, have great power, and will endure much fatigue for ten successive days, carrying grain for themselves and their rider. The habits of his subjects are equally well fitted to this mode of life; and the absolute authority which he has over them, places their services at all times at his disposal. There is not a man in his dominions, let him possess what authority he may, but must yield it up at the nod of the Mir. His own tribe are devotedly attached to him, and seldom mention his name without exclaiming 'Khoda dowlut zyada,' may God add to his riches. He is not equally popular with the Tajik mountain states, which he has subdued; but among these all spirit of resistance is so completely crushed, that while Murad Beg lives, there is no chance of their attaining freedom unless aided by a foreign power. Still these people, though indignant at the Mir's arbitrary rule, do not deny his great abilities, and especially his talent of quickly penetrating into the counsels of other men. with all his high qualifications Murad Beg is but at the head of an organized banditti, a nation of plunderers, whom, however, none of the neighbouring powers can exterminate. Able as he is to bring together in a surprisingly short space of time, a body of 15,000 horsemen, inured to predatory warfare, and to those stealthy attacks for which Turkiman and Uzbek are equally celebrated, he feels himself perfectly secure from the assault of any of the chief-tains by whom he is surrounded. * • His government is rigidly despotic, but seldom is absolute power less misused. The rights and property of his subjects are respected, merchants are safe, and trade is en-couraged. Punishment for crime, whether against individuals or the state, is most summary; for theft and highway robbery, if the highway be in their own country, for that makes a wonderful difference, the only award is death. An offender, when detected, never escapes punishment, and seutence is no sooner pronounced than executed. This prompt procedure is little in accordance with the beautiful maxim of English jurisprudence, that it is better many who are guilty should escape than that one innocent man should suffer; yet the certainty of punishment has lessened the commission of crime. Countries in former times closed to the traveller, may now, with Murad Beg's protection, be as safely traversed as British India."

Lieut. Wood's strong good sense and unaffected candour are in nothing more conspicuous, than in his discovering the good qualities of Murad Beg, and the merits of that chieftein's system of government. We sincerely believe that he is in the right, and that the government of Kunduz is not unmixed ill, as it has been hitherto described. Yet we may observe, that it is of no use to make the roads safe to wayfarers, when those who remain in their houses are not safe. It is tyranny, and not justice, in a ruler, to put to death petty robbers, while he himself robs. The followers of Murad Beg may admire his energy, but his neighbours have good reason to curse his restless and grasping spirit, which has reduced a fair country to poverty and desolation.

While the Doctor endeavoured to console his patient, whose case was incurable, our author planned a journey to the sources of the Oxus; nor did he find any difficulty in obtaining Murad Beg's sanction for that undertaking, and the requisite assistance. For some distance eastward the road lies above the valley of the Oxus, which makes a circuit to the north. Among the hills bordering the river Kokcha, he saw the ruins of Fyzabad, a city once celebrated in the East, but the site of which is now discovered chiefly by the fruit trees, once the ornameuts of its gardens.

"Murad Beg (he observes) must have had evil councillors when he destroyed Fyzabad, and forcibly removed its inhabitants to Kunduz, a place only fit to be the residence of aquatic birds. He has lost both in men and revenue by the measure. It was impossible to behold the desolation of so fair a scene, without commiscrating the unfortunate exiles and execrating their tyrant, or without shuddering to think, that one man, as ill-advised as cruel, should have the power to work so much mischief and to make so many of his species miserable! But alas, the history of every age presents us with a catalogue of similar atrocities, nor will they cease until education and pure religion are diffused over the entire

The famous mines of lapis lazuli, situate in this valley, were of course visited by our author. They are now unproductive, and like the ruby mines on the opposite bank of the Oxus, (whence came the famous Balass rubies), must probably lie undisturbed, till a milder sway will allow them to be worked with intelligence and a hope of reasonable profit. The dangerous state of the river ice, the rumour of avalanches, and the recent mishaps of a party which had visited the ruby mines, compelled our author to renounce his intention of proceeding in that direction. He was detained five weeks (including all January) in the village of Jerm, in Badakhshan, by the inclemency of the season, and thus became acquainted with the domestic life and modes of thinking of a very interesting people. His vivid and well drawn picture of life in the village of Jerm, embraces too many details to suit our canvas; we must, therefore, content ourselves with pointing it out as equally curious and pleasing. Nor must we omit to mention that the princes of Badakhshan, now stripped of their authority by Murad Beg, claim to be descended from Alexander the Great. This proud pedigree, which they share with the ruling families in several adjoining mountain states, seems to prove that the upper valley of the Oxus was comprehended in the Graco-Bactrian kingdom.

Proceeding up the valley of the Oxus between mountains covered with perpetual snow, our traveller arrived at the village of Ishtrakh in a snow storm, and should never have perceived the houses perched among the rocks, if there had not been a Yak, or Kash-gow, standing at the door of one of them, held by a Kirghiz boy. The novel sight of this sturdy and hairy animal, which, but for its horns, might be mistaken for a huge Newfoundland dog, fixed attention as much as the amazon who bestrode it. The animal's habits are thus pleasantly described:—

"The Yak is to the inhabitants of Tibet and Pamir, what the reindeer is to the Laplander in northern Europe. Where a man can walk a Kashgow may be ridden. Like the elephant he possesses a wonderful knowledge of what will bear his weight. If travellers are at fault, one of these animals is driven before them, and it is said that he avoids the hidden depths and chasms with admirable sagacity. His footing is sure. Should a fall of snow close a mountain pass to man and horse, a score of Yaks driven a-head answer the purpose of pioneers, and make, as my informant expresses it, 'a king's highway.' In this case, however, the snow must have recently fallen; for when once its surface is frozen and its depth considerable, no animal can force its way through it. Other cattle require the provident care of man to subsist them through the winter. The most hardy sheep would fare but badly without its human protection, but the Kash-gow is left entirely to itself. He frequents the mountain slopes and their level summits. Wherever the mercury does not rise above zero, is a climate for the Yak. If the snow on the elevated flats lie too deep for him to crop the herbage, he rolls himself down the slopes and cats his way up again. When arrived at the top, he performs a second summerset, and com-pletes his meal as he displaces another groove of snow in his second ascent. The heat of summer sends the animal to what is termed the old ice, that is to the regions of eternal snow; the calf being retained below as a pledge for the mother's returning, in which she never fails. In the summer, the women, like the pastoral inhabitants of the Alps, encamp in the higher valleys, which are interspersed among the snowy mountains, and devote their whole time to the dairy. The men remain on the plain, and attend to the agricultural part of the establishand attend to the agricultural part of the establishment, but occasionally visit the upper stations; and all speak in rapture of these summer wanderings. The Kash-gows are gregarious, and set the wolves, which here abound, at defiance. Their hair is clipped once a year in the spring. The tail is the well-known Chowry of Hindustan, but in this country, its strong, wiry, and pliant hair, is made into ropes, which, for strength, do not yield to those manufactured from hemp. The hair of the body is woren into mats, and also into a strong fabric which makes tured from hemp. The hair of the body is woven into mats, and also into a strong fabric which makes excellent riding trousers. The milk of the Yak is richer than that of the common cow, though the quantity it yields be less."

By dint of perseverance, and with the aid of a Kirghiz escort, the plain of Pamir, whence the Oxus descends, was at length gained. The gigantic horns of the wild sheep, gathered in heaps, served to mark out the road, as already observed by Marco Polo, the general accuracy of whose descriptions was fully recognized. But we will let our author himself relate his triumph.

"After quitting the surface of the river we travelled about an hour along its right bank, and then ascended a low hill, which apparently bounded the valley to the eastward; on surmounting this, at five o'clock in the afternoon of the 19th of February, 1838, we stood, to use mative expression, upon the Bam-i-Duniah, or 'Roof of the World,' while before us lay stretched a noble but frozen sheet of water. from whose western end issued the infant river of the Oxus. This fine lake lies in the form of a crescent, about fourteen miles long from east to west, by an average breadth of one mile. On three sides it is bordered by swelling hills, about 500 feet high, whilst along its southern bank they rise into mountains 3,500 feet above the lake, or 19,000 above the sen, and covered with perpetual snow, from which never-fulling source the lake is supplied. From observations at the western end I found the latitude to be 37° 27" N. by mer. alt. of the sun, and longitude 73° 40° E. by protraction from Langer Kish, where the last set of chronometric observations had been obtained; its elevation measured by the temperature of boiling water, is 16,000 feet—as my thermometer marked 184° of Fahrenheit. The temperature of the water below the ice was 32°—the freezing point."

Thus Lieut. Wood followed to its source the Oxus bound in ice; he surveyed its valley wrapt in snow; he saw the country, therefore, under great disadvantage, and when it was literally all a blank. Yet he made the most of the opportunities presented to him; and when we take into account the hardships to which he exposed himself in his wintry journey, the valuable geo-graphical details which he has collected, and his clear sketches of society, characterized throughout by good sense and kindly feeling, we have no hesitation in pronouncing his volume to be one of the most agreeable and instructive of its class.

It will be sufficient to observe, that he Kabul. returned to the latter place by the direct road over the Hindoo Koosh, and down the valley of Parwan. This was the very road by which the Jesuit, Goez, of whose journey he seems to be ignorant, travelled from Kabul to the Oxus, in 1603. From Badakhshan to Yarkand we are unable to trace the Jesuit's route, which does not appear to have been across Pamir; and we regret that our author did not make it one of the subjects of his inquiries.

The Courts of Europe at the Close of the Last Century. By the late Henry Swinburne, Esq. Edited by Charles White, Esq. 2 vols. Colburn.

THESE volumes deserved an editor less addicted to intrude notes apropos des bottes, and better instructed in the court gossip of the last century -more careful printing, and seless coarsely-executed portrait than the woolly lithograph executed portrait than the woolly lithograph prefixed. Our list of things wanted, will show that we like them well, after their kind; and prepare such of our readers as love anecdote for the liberal extracts we shall make from their pages.

Swinburne's Travels in Spain and Italy were long considered as classical works of reference, not merely as containing faithful pictures of scenes then somewhat less familiar to the English than Ranelagh and Vauxhall, but as the work of scholar and a gentleman. On his first return from the continent, Mr. Swinbutne was indirectly invited to accept of some diplomatic appointment; and subsequently, he did appear at Paris, in the year 1796, as "British commis-sioner for the adjustment of the proposed cartel for the exchange of prisoners"—a mission, the delicacy of which was increased by the then imprisonment of Sir Sidney Smith, and the harshness with which he was treated. Mr. Swinburne had long been in personal relations with the Courts of Europe: young Swinburne, his son, was enrolled among the pages of the ill-fated Marie Antoinette. The youth was withdrawn at the commencement of the Revolution, and subsequently perished at sea. We have here indicated the more important events of our traveller's life: and shall pass, without further preamble, to the work itself.

Scarcely have we turned eight pages, than we come upon a Court group: the scene Ver-sailles—the time, the very last days of Louis Quinze:

"The Duke of Dorset was the only Englishman presented with me. We met in the Salle des Ambassadeurs, and there made acquaintance. After a little waiting, the ambassador escorted us to the prime minister's levee, (the Duc d'Aiguillon.) If he said anything to me, it was so little and so low, that I do not recollect a word of it. In his antechamber the envoys of Europe were assembled, decorated with ribbons of all colours, and crosses and keys of with ribbons of all colours, and crosses and keys of all metals. Among the rest the famous Aranda, late president of Castile; but now, to the astonishment of everybody, ambassador to the court of France, by his own request. * * About eleven, the introductors gave notice of the king's levee being ready, and so, in company of a German baron, we trudged up stairs, and surprised hismost Christian Majesty in his waist-coat; for none but the family ambassadors may see him in buff. After staring at us talking about the him in buff. After staring at us, talking about the opera with some few of the crowds of courtiers, and saying about one minute's prayer with his cardinal, he drew towards us, who were ranged near the door in rank and file. All he said was, 'Est-il fils du vieux Duc de Dorset, que j'ai comm autrefois? and so marched off. However, as they talked much to others who stood near us, I can describe them better from this view than from the subsequent one. The Dauphin is very awkwardly made, and uncouth in his motions. His face resembles his grandfather's, but he is not near so handsome, though he has by no of the most agreeable and instructive of its class. means a bad countenance. His nose is very pro-We need not reconduct him to Kunduz and minent, his eyes are gray, and his complexion is

They are not yet quite formed as to legs and strength, and have all a good deal of that restless motion, first upon one leg and then upon another, which is also remarkable in some members of the English royal family. The questions they ask seem very frivolous and puerile. I believe they find their time hang very heavy on their hands, for they ran with great glee to tickle one of the king's valets de chambre, as he was carrying out the king's dixty clothes. Our next trot was to the Dauphin, who said nothing. The same silence reigned at the levee of his brothers, as to our share at least. The Comtesse de Provence is a little dumpy woman, and but a plain piece of goods; her sister, the Comtesse d'Artois, is rather prettier, having a fine skin and tolerable eyes, but her nose is immense, and her toes are turned in. Poor thing! she seemed quite frightened, and could hardly speak. I did intend to reserve Madame du Barré for the bonne bouche, but it must be the Dauphiness, who quite won my heart. I can give you no account of her particular features; but her air, eyes, shape, motion, her tout ensemble, were most charming. From her we passed to the were most charming. From her we passed to the three not Graces, but any other trio you may think would suit them. I mean the King's daughters: the Dauphin's sisters were not visible. After all these perambulations up stairs and down stairs through the royal family, we climbed up a dark winding staircase, which I should have suspected would have led to an apartment of the Bastile, rather than to the temple of love and elegance. In a low entresol we found the favourite sultana in her morning gown, her capuchin on, and her hair undressed; she was very gracious, and chatted a good deal, as every body else seemed to do at Versailles, about the opera. I could hardly refrain from laughing at an involuntary exclamation from my brother presentee, the Duke, whose mistress, Mrs. Parsons, has, you know, been long out of her teens. 'Good heavens!' said his grace in a whisper to me, 'why, her bloom is quite past.' She is of a middling age, just plump enough, her face rather upon the yellow leaf, her eyes good, and all her features regular; but I cannot think her a pleasing figure now, whatever she may have been, or may be still, when made up and decked out in her pride." Theu comes a dinner at the Duc d'Aiguillon's, with the Duchess of Mazarin, and Helvetius's beautiful Madame Forcalquier-then a notice of Gluck's 'Orphée'—and a word concerning the King's small-pox. The dreary details of the death of the monarch, to whom Mr. Swinburne was the last person presented, are here given in a small space. Close to these is a notice of a young Englishman, the son of Mr. Jamaica Hall, who had run through ten thousand pounds in six months, in a course of the fashionable gaieties of Paris. The French capital is left almost directly after this last entry, the Swinburnes being on their way southwards. At Blois, they dined at Menars, with the Marquis de Marigni, who, out of the Polly-hood (as Horace Walpole would have called it) of his sister, the more notorious Madame de Pompadour, had contrived to extract a title, an estate, a chateau, furnished with " the finest Gobelin tapestry, real chintz beds, fine worked silks, paintings, china jars, mirrors," &c.

The notices of the interior of France are interesting; but we prefer people to things, and M. le Comte de Noailles at Bordeaux to the castle of Chaumont, "Les Ormes, the chateau of M. de Paulmy," or to Chatelberault with its steeples and bridges. If the consequence of the konourable Marquis de Marigni's title and tapestry could hardly fail to be a revolution such as did burst over France, in the following scene may be discerned the cloud "only the size of a man's hand" rising on the horizon :--

" Bordeaux, March, 1775. "There has been m great piece of work and rejoicing here on the parliament being re-established by Louis XVI., sous les auspices de son ministrère :

the Comte de Novilles brought the intelligence The exiled members returned to their station, and everybody seemed in an uproar of joy. Noailles landed at the Chateau Rouge from the city barge, after rowing up and down the river through lines of ships with their colours flying, and saluting with their guns: he then walked through the Fosse de l'Intendance to the government palace between a file of bourgeoisie sous les armes, and preceded by the town guards on horseback and on foot. The acclamations of the people and the crowded appearance of all the windows seemed to please him very much, and, like the Duc de Guise in the Henriade, he came along howing and smiling to the spectators on either side. In the afternoon all the parliament men and women were assembled at la Chapelle de Barbet, a mile from the town, to receive the premier president at a grand banquet. A triumphant arch and the feast were prepared by the freemasons, who distributed invitations printed on satin, with various devices: he afterwards proceeded to Bordeaux, escorted by one hundred and sixty coaches full of all the town contains of people of fashion, besides many young men on horseback, and the Maréchaussée, each side of the road, every housetop, every window, being crammed as full as could be with spectators. It was an animated spectacle. He was received at his nown house by music, garlands and triumphant mottees, and the mob filled the house so that it was midnight before he got rid of them. We went next day to the palace, where M. de Noailles arrived with his guards en habit de cérémonle. The return of the exiles was applauded by a most numerous populace without, and a large assembly of gentlemen within, the hall. The Manuats, or such as remained in 1771. were hissed and hooted at by the mob. One of the presidents a mortier, M. d'Augeard, brought us by a side-door into the saile de conseil, where he placed us close to M. de Noailles. There were not above twenty strangers admitted. The whole parliament was there attired in red griwns. M. de Nouilles opened the assembly with a short and proper speech, expressive of his joy in being the instrument the king had chosen to employ in restoring the parlia-ment of Bordeaux to his people, recommending union, &c. The premier president then rose and pronounced a good discourse, but very severe on the ministers of the late king, and replete with a greater spirit of resolution and freedom than the Grand Monarque might have liked to hear. The edict of re-establishment was then read, which is similar to that of Paris. The doors were then thrown open, and it was again read to the multitude.
Your friend, M. de Salegourde, who had been exiled to Perregeux, having received a lettre de cachet like the rest, is come back and takes his seat."

From Bordeaux, the party moved to Bagnères, already a place of resort, and frequented by "a large posse of Americans," though without a Cicerone to its antiquities. From thence, with Sir Thomas Gascoigne, Mr. Swinburne advanced into Spain, to collect materials for his tour. Many of these appear here so pleasantly, as to tempt us to return to them, when we have finished our course among the men and women who figured at the close of the last century. At Granada, he was warmly welcomed by General Wall; at Cadiz, very nearly talked down by Count O'Reilly, "who took Algiers,"—(vide Beppo'). At Madrid, we come into m court garden full of grandees, and have pictures in a line of the Prince of Asturias "sailing in his golden galley on the Tagus," and of the King, who goes out shooting every day, sometimes twice a day," who "seldom speaks to young men, and likes old people best, especially But extricating ourselves from Aranmonks." juez and the Escurial, it must suffice us to say, that Mr. Swinburne received at the Spanish Court the most flattering credentials to the royalties of Naples, whither he shortly afterwards proceeded. The first Neapolitan entry gives us another of "the excellent vulgarisms" which Horace Walpole delighted, in the bitterness of his heart, to register against the 'Statira' of his letters to Sir Horace Mann:—

There was a ball the other night in the Queen's apartments in dominos and masks. The king made one of them. Next evening the triumphal car of the four seasons of the Duke of Madelona paraded the streets, a festing of the Cavalieri on St. Lucia, which was stupid enough. There were few masks of character, and all seemed mute. We dined with Lady Orford, the daughter in-law of Sir Robert Wulpole, and now separated from her busband. She is very fond of whist, and is peculiar for always saying at the end, "and two by honours," by which declaration, if not always investigated, she often makes two more on her score than are her due, unless playing with those who are accustomed to her pranks. She is at the same time very severe with regard to others, and scolds famously both her partner and her antagonists. We were amused the other night at Lord Tilney's card party by a scena. A Mrs. Sperm, who is sort of toady of Lady Orford's, and generally makes up her whist party, happened to have thirteen trumps dealt to her. She was in great dismay, being frightened to death at Lady O., and feeling sure she fould accuse her of cheating, at least by innuendos, Do, madam !' said he ; 'why play them out to be worth hanging up :-

"The queen has something very disagreeable in her manner of speaking, moving her whole face when she talks, and gesticulating violently. Her voice is very hourse, and her eves goggie. She has acquired a roundness in her shoulders, and is very fond of showing her hand, which is beautiful. If she sees or suspects the king to be taken with any woman, she plagues her life out, is in horrid humour, and leaves no stone unturned to break off all connexion between them; whether from real jealousy, or apprehension of losing the power she has over her husband, which is very great, since she has got quit of old Tanucci. The king cries out in vain that his case is very hard, that he cannot go where he pleases, &c."

The rest of the court gossip about the Queen's jealousy of the Duchess of Lucciana and the dunseuse Rossi, and her own gallantrics, must pass—as also "the excellent hot supper at the ball at court, which every one cat on his knees and Lady Orford's pleasant dinners. But here is a character in an anecdote:-

"The Prince of Stigliano is extremely timorous. He refused the viceroyship of Sicily, until the king allowed him to take the Spanish regiment of Arragon cavalry with him. He sailed with it and landed with it. It happened soon after his arrival that he assisted at a procession, at the end of which the whole crowd threw down their torches, and bawled out 'Fiva Maria! muora Finferno! The poor frightened viceroy, thinking the rebellious Sicilians were crying 'Muora il governo! was seized with violent convulsions, and forced to be carried into the sacristy."

Here is a royal villeggiatura, for which we must make room, were it only for the sake of

Mr. Spence and Miss Snow:

" We dired at Portici, at the Maggiordomo's, and afterwards saw the king draw up a detachment of the atterwards saw the king traw up a detachment of the cadets, Lipariotes and chasseurs, and hold a council of war, like a child playing à la medame. At six, his majesty marched into the Boschetto, where we followed him. The advanced guards, his new Cacciatore, attacked and drove away the enemy's light troops; and after several skirmishes between the different corps, the defendants were obliged to retire into the castle; the besiegers then attacked and took by escalade a house in the woods. At eight o'clock the company came down to the Pallone, where a large vestibule or card-room was erected for the occasion, at one end of which was a very grand theatre, at the other an immense ball-room. Though run up in such a burry, and slightly built, they are exceedingly elegant and well proportioned. We to be given by the queen. One day, however, he had a French play, after which we all adjourned to gave his eldest daughter an ounce, and the child the card-room to take refreshments, and from thence seemed so delighted, and hugged him so much for it, to the ball. About twelve the king and queen that the queen could not help taking notice of it, retired, and soon after the assembly broke up, walk- and asking the princess why she showed such extra-ing to their coaches by the light of a charming illumination, through the wood and large gardens, where the fountains formed a pleasing decoration. The presence of the severeigns in these parties, instead of causing any formality, seems to make everything more joyial and merry. Next evening the ball was repeated, and many more English were invited. Mr. Spence and Miss Snow, by their furious dancing, entertained the king prodigiously; he was in roars of laughter, bravoed, clapped his hands, and encouraged them to skip and jump about. Each of them was conscious how much the other was laughed at, and took care to tell it to all the company, without suspecting that their own figure and performance could be the object of merriment. There was an Italian play, great stuff. The king continues to divert himself with his camp, pushing on trenches, besieging, &c., till the cadets and Lipariotes have quarrelled in good earnest, and begun doing mischief to each other. One of the latter was very danger-ously wounded by being fired at too near. Whilst the villeggiatura was acting, a bomb was thrown into the castle, among the company."

At Naples, Swinburne met the Abbé Galisni, "one of the beaux esprits of Madame du Defif not openly. In her agitation she got up and asked leave to speak to Lord Tinley, to whom she told her distress, and asked him what she should do. I fand's and Madame Geoffin's society;" but we cannot linger among his good stories, having a Court anecdote or two in store. The first places

> "When Charles the Fifth returned from Tunis, he travelled by land through Calabria and to Naples, and did much good by the road. Seeing Calabria without corn, and being told it was too mountainous and too cold for it to ripen, he ordered rye-seed to be brought from Germany. It succeeds well, and is now universal over these parts, where it is known by the name of 'Germano.' At La Cava, the town council met to consider what present they should give the Emperor. Some were for pine-apples, the kernels of which are of a vast size; but the majority carried it in favour of a kind of fig, which they cover with mats in winter, and in March (the time of the emperor's passing) the fruit is very ripe, and deli-cious eating. The emperor received the deputies very graciously, and expressing great surprise at the fineness of the fruit at that season of the year, inquired whether they could preserve any quantity of them, and whether they were in abundance. said the wise mayor, 'we have such plenty that we give them to our hogs,' "What,' said Charles, " to your hogs?-then take your figs back again; and so saying, he fiung a ripe one full in the face of the orator. The courtiers, following the example of their sovereign, the poor deputies had their faces all besmeared and their eyes bunged out with the fruit. As they were returning from the audience, one of these sapient senators, taking the whole to be part of the ceremonial of a reception by an emperor, observed to his brethren how lucky it was they had carried the point in favour of figs; for, had they presented pine-apples, they would undoubtedly have had their brains knocked out."

> "The other day the king met an old woman near Caserta, of whom he bought a turkey. She, not knowing the blackguard-looking fellow she was with to be the sovereign, accompanied him towards the palace with his purchase. As soon as he appeared there, the drums beat, and the guards turned out; upon which, the old woman, who knew the signal, pulled him back, and told him to get out of the way, for that 'LOU PAZZO' was coming, who would run over them; and that 'lou rey pazzo' made nothing of trampling people under his horses' feet; and that he was constantly running about instead of minding his business, and so everything went al diavolo. 'There is no justice,' added she, 'no law; and all things are extremely dear.' The king then conducted her in, and you may suppose that she was frightened out of her wits when she found out who it was, by his reception at the gate. His majesty, who was extremely diverted at her terror, made her repeat it all to the queen, who gave her some money. He never gives anything himself, but gets everything vagant joy for one piece, when she had had so many from her upon fifty occasions. 'Oh, mama,' said the girl, 'but this is the first I ever was able to get out of papa ! The king was quite affected and absolutely cast down for some time by this reproach."

At this rate, we shall never have finished; and as the lords and ladies of the first volume are not one-half of them yet paraded-antiquities and natural objects being entirely out of the question—we will even make a long step— pass Sicily, with its seductions of climate—and Rome with its countless antiquities-and Florence with its gallery and Sir Horace Mann's circle (the Chevalier Lorenzi not forgotten, whose Lorenziana contribute such a piquant chapter to the Grimm Correspondence) - Turin, with its court of "Corsican fairies" - and the whole return route to England. The next series of letters, which furnish their contingent, are those from Vienna; and even to these we can only be indebted for a single figure; but this is · drawn at full length, and finished with great minuteness:-

"We went afterwards, in Sir Robert Keith's carriage, to dine with Prince Kaunitz at Laxenburg, two leagues distant from Vienna. There are avenues of horse-chesnut and lime-trees all the way avenues of horse-chesnut and lime-trees all the way in an open even country. Laxenburg is a small town in the hollow part of the great plain. There is an old chateau, newly patched up, and a strange low palace, the residence of the imperial family. The generality of the nobility have their houses here; but that of Prince Kauniz is the only grand the residence and he has leid out a great deal of money upon one, and he has laid out a great deal of money upon There is one noble room; the rest are low and small for a person of such consequence. At dinner we had the Count de Burghausen, the Comtesse de Thun, the Comtesse de Clary, a young widow, the favourite of Kaunitz, and Baron Swieten, son of the famous physician, Mr. Beaky. After dinner the prince treated us with the cleaning of his gums; one of the most nauseous operations I ever witnessed, and it lasted a prodigious long time, accompanied with all manner of noises. He carries a hundred implements in his pocket for this purpose—such as glasses of all sorts for seeing before and behind his teeth, a whotting steel for his knife, pinchers to hold the steel with, knives and scissors without number. and cottons and lawns for wiping his eyes. His whims are innumerable. Nothing allusive to the mortality of human nature must ever be rung in his ears. To mention the small-pox is enough to knock him up for the day. I saw an instance of this; for Burghausen, having been long absent, came out with it, and the prince looked as black as could be all the rest of the day. To derange the train of his ideas puts him sadly out of sorts. The other day, ideas puts him sadly out of sorts. The other day, he sent a favourite dish of meat as a present to an aunt of his, four years after her decease, and would not have known it but for a blumdering servant, who blabbed it to him. He is full of childish vanities, and wishes to be thought to excel in everything. He used to have a spiral glass for mixing the oil and vinegar for salads, which he shook every day with great parade and affectation. At last the bottle broke in his hands, and covered him and his two neighbouring ladies with its contents. A gentleman not opening a bottle of champagne to his mind, he called for one to give the company a lesson in uncalled for one to give the company a lesson in un-corking and frothing the liquor: unluckily he missed the calculation of his parabola, and poured out the wine into his uplifted sleeve, as well as into his waistcoat, &c. By-the-bye, he is dressed very waistcoat, &c. By-the-bye, he is dressed very oddly; his wig comes down upon his nose, with a couple of small straggling curls on each side, placed in wery ridiculous manner. He is extremely fond of adulation, will swallow anything in its shape, and indeed lays it upon himself with a very liberal hand. One of his peculiarities is a detestation of musk. He is a sovereign Count of Rietberg, in right of his mother, which brings him in about 3,000%, a year. His paternal fortune 4,000%. He has enormous debts, but gets 10,000£ a year from the empress, and is never stinted by her. His expenditure in funcies and trifles is incredible. He studied at Leipsic with great reputation, and is an excellent Latin scholar, and so do we that live on it, though not so fast in theory, is upheld in practice in all its pris-but no Grecian; he understands English, French, as many imagine. Notwithstanding the vast | time authority; that, being brought home to rather a great deal is read to him. He has good taste, and has raised the arts from barbarism to great perfection at Vienna. In husiness he is intelligent, and far above any mean subterfuges or falsehoods. He is always silent when he does not choose to express his real sentiments. * * His wife was # Messalina, and after her death he took to actresses, whose dupe he was, to his cost. He has no affection for his children. The two eldest sons are bornés, for his children. The two eldest sons are bornés, but gentle, worthy creatures; the third and fourth absolute nonentities; the fifth a sad roue. Kamitz rides very well, and is food of showing off. The empress ordered his picture to be taken, and gave the inscription to be placed under it, denoting him to have been for three years her minister, her friend and her confident. The emperor once entertained a great aversion for him, and a few years ago, Kaunitz, who fancies he can do everything, drew up the plan of a campaign, so supremely ridiculous, that the emperor was convinced he had nothing more than the pretensions and arts of a state quack. Of late, however, il en est revenu sur son compte, and is now convinced of his abilities, and is very intimate

"Kaunitz is the greatest tyrant and bashaw I ever knew; he has always some dishes and cakes (peculiar dainties) reserved for himself, which nobody dares to touch. As he mostly makes me sit near him. Madame de Thun warned me not to transgress, which perhaps put it into my head to do so, for I did not care a halfpenny about him. Accordingly I took an opportunity, and, notwithstanding all the signs and distressed looks of my wife opposite, I succeeded in carrying off some of his favourite gauffres and sweetmeats. He looked very awkward, grew quite reserved, and me bouda for several days. I took no notice of his pettishness, which amused me extremely, and in about week he came round of himself. I was walking from dinner through a long string of rooms, talking to the Nuncio, when I felt an arm thrown over my shoulder, and turning round saw it was Kaunitz, in high good humour. He said saw it was Kaunitz, in high good numour. He said he wanted my opinion of a variety of pictures ex-hibited for his approbation, by Michel, the engraver of Basle, who makes him his dupe, for these pictures are absolute daubs. Amongst others is one of a pope, which the Nuncio and I thought to be one of those exhibited at Rome, at l'Ara de Massimi, price sixteen paoli. When the Grand Duke Leopold was to be married at Inspruck to the King of Spain's daughter, Prince Kaunitz went thither beforehand to see that everything was in order for the fete. The opera, among the rest, engaged his attention, and he questioned Gläck about it. The composer assured questioned Gifick about it. The composer assured him that the performers, singers, and decorations were perfect. Well, then, said the prince, 'let us have the opera directly.' 'How!' exclaimed Gifick, 'without an audience?'—'Monsieur Gifick,' he replied, 'sachez que la qualité vaut bien la quantité; je suis moi seul une audience.' He was obeyed, and 'yet he del bie seth per perfect triumph.' I heard him tell this with great triumph."

Into a last nook and corner of space we must cram one more original:

"I afterwards accompanied Baron de Swieten on a visit to the old Prince of Saxe Hildburghausen, who, at eighty years old, can raise a weight of three hundred pounds. He always retires to hisrest at eight o'clock, and as he walks from his salon to his hedchamber, has men posted, who pull off his wig and clothes, so that he is ready for his bed by the time he gets to the door of his bedchamber. Thus scarcely minutes suffice for his toilette."

The Martyrs of Science, or the Lives of Galileo, Tycho Brahe, and Kepler. By Sir D. Brewster. Murray.

" E pur si muove,"-yes, the world does move, and Italian very perfectly, and reads a great deal, or increase of knowledge in the departments of physical science, and the partial demolition and decay of some ethical errors (the causes of great practical unhappiness), there is little ground for thinking with certain enthusiasts, that "the farce is over, and we may go to supper." cause of intellectual independence is not gained. The right of free thought is not so firmly established, that we have nothing more to learn or to suffer, in its behalf. There is, it is true, no room to doubt that the Reformation in religion, by relieving mankind from the incubus of one sole infallible authority, has materially improved the condition of society, morally, scientifically, and politically, no less than in its relation to the point originally at issue. We are in no immediate likelihood of such m crusade against science, as that directed by the Church in Galileo's time against the Copernican system. We shall not see Mr. Babbage and his machine committed to the same flames, for a copartnership in witchcraft. Nor do we think it probable that the state will very soon again hang a priest for saying mass, or reward a renegade son for his religious apostacy, by endowing him with the forfeited estate of his father, who prefers (to parody a blunder of the once famous George Falkner) the "errors of his own religion to those of his neighbour's." But though knowledge, or rather the improved moral feeling that knowledge brings with it, has gained this triumph, yet is the human mind itself - combination of the same passions, obeying the same laws, and ready at any moment to manifest, we fear, the same passions, whenever the opportunity arises for the assertion of self-interest.

> in advance of its predecessors; neither are we prepared to attribute the cruelties of by-gone persecution, exclusively to the vices of the individuals who were the instigators of them. It is certain, indeed, that in those days human life was rated at a low value; but, considering the stake for which the Church then played, its antecedents, its habits of thought, and, above all, its sense of irresponsible authority, we have, perhaps more reason to be surprised at its moderation towards scientific innovators, than at its severity: and we ask ourselves whether, all things considered, there is not as much evil disposition manifested in the intolerance with which rival sects persecute and plague each > other, in this much lauded nineteenth century, as was displayed by the persecutors of the Galileos in the sixteenth. The faggot and the cord, > it is true, are no longer permissible instruments

If, under these convictions, we are not disposed to place the passing age so pre-eminently of religious or political controversy, as in the times of Huss and Servetus, but the ingenuity of power (whether lodged in Church, State, or public opinion) has employed other methods of en-forcing silence, scarcely less painful to the mind of the sufferer. Neither is it an alleria-tion that persecution has passed from kings and popes into the hands of the people. Power, when vested in an individual, or in the few, is exerted with cruelty, in support only of a small circle of selfish interests,-at long intervals,and with a conscious caution: in the hands of an illiberal, ignorant many, it is at once capricious in its direction, and constant in its malignity; and, as it leaves its victims no appeal save to posterity (an appeal from Alexander drunk to Alexander sober), it deprives them of their greatest consolation, the sympathy of their fellow men. It is no sophistical assertion to maintain that, amidst all our boasted illumination, the principle of persecution, however formally rejected in theory, is upheld in practice in all its prisevery man's door, and exerted on every petty occasion, there is as little real freedom allowed to unpopular thinking, as in the old times, when the trade of persecution was exclusively committed to the Ecclesiastical Courts and Star Chambers. We have neither space nor disposition to demonstrate this odious truth by example. The fact is too much of a noon-day sun splendour to require such illustration; and it is enough to point to the state of parties in this country, and to the leaven of religious intolerance that has festered them into their dangerous fermentation. At no period of our domestic history was a caution more necessary in the assertion of individual opinion; at no time was the face of science cloaked by more conventional plausibilities, or disfigured by more illogical concessions to dominant presumption.

Under the influence of such convictions, we took up the volume bearing for title 'The Martyrs of Science,' with some faint hopes that Sir D. Brewster was about to defend the rights of mind, and to assert the claims of thought to unimpeached freedom in its own domains, against the peculiar intolerance of the day. We were the more inclined to this hope because Kepler suffered no personal annoyance, and whatever Tycho may have endured, it was not traceable to an infallible and persecuting church, but to the ignorance and misapprehensions of contemporary opinion. In the person of Tycho we find no case as against the public authorities, either lay or clerical. On the contrary, Frederick II. of Denmark seems to have been a generous patron and protector. On the death of this monarch, indeed, it seems that the hostility of the nobles, who viewed his encouragement and reward with jealousy, "filled him with alarm." The president of the council, Walchendorp,— "a name which," says Sir David, "while the heavens revolve, will be pronounced with horror by astronomers," took advantage of the circumstance to appoint a commission to report on the nature and utility of his studies; and on their unfavourable return, he "prohibited him from continuing his chemical experiments." Coupling this fact with the asserted enmity of the physicians, who, it is said, "envied his reputation as a successful and a gratuitous practitioner," whose patients were cured "by the panaceal prescriptions of the astrologer," it does not appear too loose a conjecture to consider this " persecution" as directed against the charlatanerie of the alchemist and the fortune-teller, rather than against the truth-seeking labours of the astro-

But whatever may have been our author's views in adopting the first part of the title affixed to his book, they are so imperfectly made out,-not to say utterly abandoned-in the body of the work, as to leave his design in publishing an all but unguessable enigma. Whether the result proceed from indifference, the absence of Whether the much thought on the subject, or a participation in the too prevalent intellectual timidity of the age, there is absolutely no moral or philosophical conclusion derivable from the perusal. As compared with the lives of the same three astronomers, published by the Diffusion Society, the present production is less detailed, entering but little into the merely scientific matters connected with their story; it may therefore be designed as a gossipping and pleasant chit-chat, addressed to the more general public, and presenting them with such matter alone as they are likely to understand and enjoy. But admitting this condition, it is difficult to explain the vacillating and uncertain notions which the author has incidentally let drop as to the philosophy of his subject. On the whole, indeed, Sir David indulges a leaning against Galileo, and in behalf of the Papal party, more decided than systematic injustice; and if it was not directed to the industrial of the property of the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground, and said in a whisper to meet the ground. might have been expected from a professor of ] science and a Scotchman. According to the world, and the world's morality, there may, perhaps, be much reason in what he urges against Galileo in the following passage :-

"But whatever allowance we may make for the ardour of Galilco's temper, and the peculiarity of his position; and however we may justify and even approve of his past conduct, his visit to Urban VIII., in 1624, placed him in a new relation to the church, which demanded on his part a new and corresponding demeanour. The noble and generous reception which he met with from Urban, and the liberal declaration of Cardinal Hohenzoller on the subject of the Copernican system, should have been regarded as expressions of regret for the past, and offers of conciliation for the future. Thus bonoured by the head of the church, and befriended by its dignitaries, Galileo must have felt himself secure against the indignities of its lesser functionaries, and in the possession of the fullest license to prosecute his researches and publish his discoveries, provided he avoided that dogma of the church which, even in the present day, it has not ventured to renounce. But Galileo was bound to the Romish hierarchy by even stronger ties. His son and himself were pensioners of the church, and, having accepted of its alms, they owed to it, at least, a decent and respectful allegiance. The pension thus given by Urban was not a remuneration which sovereigns sometimes award to the services of their subjects. Galileo was a foreigner at Rome. The sovereign of the papal state owed him no obligation; and hence we must regard the pension of Galileo as a donation from the Roman Pontiff to science itself, and as a declaration to the Christian world that religion was not jealous of philosophy, and that the church of Rome was willing to respect and foster even the genius of its enemies.

Such arguments are available enough in the ordinary questions arising out of the petty politics of our own days; and they are entitled to consideration in the estimate either of Urban's personal disposition, or of Galileo's force of character; but they must not be taken as excusing the abominable principle upheld by the Papal government, or as totally condemning Galileo in a situation of great difficulty, great novelty, and immense importance to the destinies of man. It is scarcely possible, in our times, to enter into the feelings of a philosopher, bursting with newly discovered truths, looking down from the heights of a noble science on the base intrigues of selfinterested falsehood, undertaken in the hope to fetter mind, and deliberately to replunge society in the darkness of pristine error: it is difficult also to appreciate the dangers by which he was surrounded, and the necessity for adopting a tortuous policy, and availing himself of every chance that offered for carrying him through his appointed path.

That Galileo was, to a certain extent, treated with mercy, we have admitted in favour of the individual; but that fact is not available against the system; and we cannot go the whole length of Sir David's representation of the matter :-

"During the whole of the trial which had now commenced, Galileo was treated with the most marked indulgence. Abhorring, as we must do, the principles and practice of this odious tribunal, and reprobrating its interference with the cantious deductions of science, we must vet admit that, on this occasion, its deliberations were not dictated by passion, nor its power directed by vengeance. Though placed at their judgment-seat as a heretic, Galileo stood there with the recognized attributes of a sage; and though an offender against the laws of which they were the guardian, yet the highest respect was yielded to his genius, and the kindest commiseration to his infirmities."

Here we detect the juggle, latent in all such general terms, as heretic-with its consequent euphemism "law," which prejudges the whole by vengeance towards the individual, it was (in the lawyers' phrase) by a spirit of malice against all maukind. It is the summing up, however, of the case that seems to us to sin the most deeply, by siding with the strongest, and by the want of a proper fellow-feeling of the man of science with his brother :-

"The ceremony of Galileo's abjuration was one of exciting interest, and of awful formality. Clothed in the sackcloth of a repentant criminal, the venerable sage fell upon his knees before the assembled Cardinals; and laying his hands upon the Holy Evangelists, he invoked the Divine aid in abjuring and detesting, and vowing never again to teach, the doctrine of the earth's motion, and of the sun's stability. He pledged himself that he would never again, either in words or in writing, propagate such heresies; and he swore that he would fulfil and observe the penances which had been inflicted upon him." At the conclusion of this ceremony, in which he recited his abjuration word for word, and then signed it, he was conveyed, in conformity with his sentence, to the prison of the Inquisition. The riccount which we have given of the trad and the sentence of Galileo, is pregnant with the deepest interest and instruction. Human nature is here drawn in its darkest colouring; and in surveying the melancholy picture, it is difficult a decide whether religing or philosophy has been most degraded. While we witness the presumptuous priest pronouncing infallible the decrees of his own erring judgment, we see the high-minded philosopher abjuring the eternal and im-mutable truths which he had himself the glory of establishing. In the ignorance and prejudices of the age in a too literal interpretation of the language of Scripture-in a mistaken respect for the errors that had become venerable from their antiquity—and in the peculiar position which Galileo had taken among the avowed enemies of the church, we may find the elements of an apology, poor though it be, for the conduct of the Inquisition. But what excuse can we devise for the humiliating confession and abjuration of Galileo? Why did this master-spirit of the agethis high-priest of the stars-this representative of science—this hoarr sage, whose career of glory was near its consummation—why did he reject the crown of martyrdom which he had himself coveted, and which, plaited with immortal laurels, was about to descend upon his head? If, in place of disavowing the laws of nature, and surrendering in his own person the intellectual dignity of his species, he had boldly asserted the truth of his opinions, and confided his character to posterity, and his cause to an all-ruling Providence, he would have strung up the hairsuspended sabre, and disarmed for ever the hostility which threatened to overwhelm him. The philosopher, however, was supported only by philosophy; and in the love of truth he found a miserable substitute for the hopes of the martyr. Galileo cowered under the fear of man, and his submission was the salvation of the church. The sword of the Inquisition descended on his prostrate neck; and though its stroke was not physical, yet it fell with a moral influence fatal to the character of its victim, and to the dignity of science.11

This is at once false in argument, and wrong in principle. Why, in the name of justice, are such allowances to be made for the errors of the partizans of a false, a pernicious, and a dishonest principle, for the oppressors of humanity, acting, not in a pardonable blindness, but a deliberate disbelieving pursuit of self, while human infirmity is to be reproached for yielding to a power that stood alone and unembodied on the face of the earth? Why, too, are we to suppose that Galileo had no religious hopes to sustain him in his trials? and, above all, how is the latter part of this passage to be conciliated with what follows closely after it?-

One of the most prominent traits in the character of Galileo, was his invincible love of truth, and his abhorrence of that spiritual despotism which had so long brooded over Europe. His views, however, were too liberal, and too far in advance of the age which he adorned and however much we may admire the noble spirit which he evinced, and the personal sacrifices which he made, in his struggle for truth, we must yet lament the hotness of his zeal and the temerity of his onset. In his contest with the Church of Rome, he fell under her victorious banner; and though his cause was that of truth, and hers that of superstition, yet the sympathy of Europe was not roused by his misfortunes."

But enough. We have marked numerous short passages, in which the author has exhibited less closeness of reason, less correctness of thought, or more deference to "timid but respectable bodies" [respected?] than we should have expected from such a writer; but we have much greater pleasure in bearing testimony to the merits of the publication, as a well written and very readable volume, and in extracting passages from which we have received unmixed pleasure.

The observations on the transmuters of metals are among these :-

"The charlatans, whether they deal in moral or in physical wonders, form a race which is never extiact. They migrate to the different zones of the social system, and, though they change their place, and their purposes, and their victims, yet their cha-meter and motives remain the same. The philosophical mind, therefore, is not disposed to study either of these varieties of impostors; but the eccentricities and even the obliquities of great minds merit the scrutiny of the metaphysician and the moralist, and they derive peculiar interest from the state of society in which they are exhibited. Had Cardan and Cornelius Agrippa lived in modern times, their vanity and self-importance would have been checked by the forms of society; and even if their harmless pretensions had been displayed, they would have disappeared in the blaze of their genius and knowledge. But nursed in superstition, and educated in dark and turbulent times, when everything intellectual was in a state of restless transition, the genius and character of great men necessarily reflected the peculiarities of the age in which they

"The conduct of the scientific alchemists of the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth centuries presents a problem of very difficult solution. When we consider that a gas, a fluid, and w solid may consist of the very same ingredients in different proportions -that a virulent poison may differ from the most wholesome food only in the difference of quantity of the very same elements...that gold and silver, and lead and mercury, and indeed all the metals, may be extracted from transparent crystals, which searcely differ in their appearance from a piece of common salt or a bit of sugarcandy—and that dia-mond is nothing more than charcoal,—we need not greatly wonder at the extravagant expectation that the precious metals and the noblest gems might be procured from the basest materials. These expectations, too, must have been often excited by the startling results of their daily experiments. most ignorant compounder of simples could not fail to witness the magical transformations of chemical action; and every new product must have added to the probability that the tempting doublets of gold and silver might be thrown from the dice-box with which he was gambling. But when the precious metals were found in lead and copper by the action of powerful re-agents, it was natural to suppose that they had been actually formed during the process; and men of well-regulated minds even might have thus been led to embark in new adventures to procure a more copious supply, without any insult being offered to sober reason, or any injury inflicted on sound morality. When an ardent and ambitious mind is once dazzled with the fascination of some lofty pursuit, where gold is the object, or fame the impulse, it is difficult to pause in a doubtful career, and to make a voluntary shipwreck of the reputation which has been staked. Hope still cheers the aspifled ingenuity and disappointed ambition. The pretended transmutation of the baser metals into gold, or the discovery of the philosopher's stone, he attempts to sastain his sinking reputation, and recover the fortune he has lost."

We must find room for one more extract-it refers to an argument of Kepler's against the Epicurean doctrine of chance, as applicable to the new star detected on the foot of Serpentarius:

"When I was a youth, with plenty of idle time on my hands, I was much taken with the vanity, of which some grown men are not ashamed, of making anagrams, by transposing the letters of my name, written in Latin. Out of Joannes Keplerus came Serpens in Akuleo (a serpent in his sting); but not being satisfied with the meaning of these words, and being unable to make another, I trusted the thing to chance, and taking out of a pack of playing cards as many as there were letters in the name, I wrote one upon each, and then began to shuffle them, and at each shuffle to read them in the order they came, to see if any meaning came of it. Now, may all the Epicurean gods and goddesses confound this same chance, which, although I have spent a good deal of time over it, never showed me anything like sense even from a distance. So I gave up my cards to the Epicurean eternity, to be carried away into infinity; and, it is said, they are still flying about there in the utmost confusion among the atoms, and have never yet come to any meaning. I will tell those disputants, my opponents, not my own opinion, but my wife's. Yesterday, when weary with writing, and my mind quite dusty with considering these atoms, I was called to supper, and w salad I had asked for was set before me. 'It seems then,' said asked for was set before me. 'It seems then,' said I, aloud, 'that if pewfer dishes, leaves of lettuce, grains of salt, drops of water, vinegar, and oil, and slices of egg, had been flying about in the air from all eternity, it might at last happen by chance that there would come a salad. 'Yes,' says my wife, 'but not so nice and well dressed as this of mine is."

Though we could not refrain from Ittle dry discussion with Sir David, we once again recommend his volume, as a pleasant contribution to our scientific biography.

Cecil, or the Adventures of a Coxcomb. 3 vols. Bentley.

OUR arch-enemy, Puffery, will never, we fear, cease to perplex and trouble us, till some literary Millennium shall make Paternoster Row as pious as its name. Who would have anticipated that these 'Adventures of a Coxcomb,' the subject of so many anxious negotiations between the most sensitive of publishers, and the most distinguished of all the Great Unknowns, who have from time to time come forth from their Mayfair retreats, to "fright the isle from its propriety"-would after all bear so strong a family likeness to some half-dozen of unclaimed fictions, which with their acknowledged brothers and sisters already crowd the circulating libraries and fill the pages of our magazines? Who could have expected that 'Cecil' would turn out clever enough to have dispensed with such preliminary flourishings? Not that the Coxcomb altogether keeps the promise of his name : he is not all and mere surface. His self-sufficiency and frivolity are rather garments put on and off as suits his humour: his heart-we doubt whether your thorough coxcomb has a heart-does not always beat in minuet-time; but quickly enough, when the honourable Cecil gives utterance to some savage cynicism or bitter personality, which comes trippingly from his tongue, and is the expression of his real nature. In brief, the character, however cleverly drawn, is imperfect as a character. Tried for example, against Mirabel, to seek no further for our archetype,-Cecil Dauby's fashion has the air of a watering place; his experiences a rant from failure to failure, till the loss of fortune scent of Chardin Houbigant's counter; and his and the decay of credit disturb the serenity of his wit, too much of that bottled-up smartness, scent of Chardin Houbigant's counter; and his mind, and hurry him on to the last resource of baf- which illustrates a party at Blackwall pleasantly enough-but has a twang and a snap londer and course of life. However, as a whole, Cecil Danby's coxcombry and adventures are amusing: humour is searching and sarcastic; and the living spirit which animates his confessions holds out to the last. No plot, with beginning, middle and end, has trammelled the author. Cecil is younger brother, with a hard mechanical nobleman for titular father; a foolish woman of fashion, a replica of Bulwer's Lady Frances Pelham, for his mother; a despised red-haired sister, who, as the tale proceeds, turns out a domestic beauty with auburn tresses-and a silent awkward elder brother, who, by his learning and genius, throws into shade the hero's petty renown in the world of cooks and curiosity mongers. A sketch of the father is vigorous enough to be worth transferring to our pages.

" My father was a man such as one rarely sees out of England; reserved, without being contemplative, —convivial, without being social; not mistrustful, vet having confidence in nobody; cold, unexpansive, undemonstrative; fulfilling his petty duties so gravely, as to impress people with a notion they were of some consequence; and by his gravity of air and paucity of words imparting a tone of mystery to his insignificance. He seemed afraid of letting himself know what he was about. Yet he had nothing to fear. God knows he never did anything worth speak-ing of! He was a moral man. His business with Hanmer, with his banker, or with Lord Votefilch, might have been transacted at Charing Cross without injury to his fame or public virtue. Yet he seemed injury to his fame or public virtue. Yet he seemed to dread that even his own man should be aware on Tuesday that on Wednesday he had an appointment with either of the three; and as to his wife-but for that reserve there was, perhaps, sufficient motive."

At his outset, Cecil is patronized by the plainspoken hardened woman of ton, who deals in maxims, and is a fixture in fashionable novels. Here again we can in a few brief sentences, introduce the parties to our readers. At the close of Danby's first course in coxcombry, under Lady Harriet Vandeleur, she gives him a flower.

" A token of approbation and encouragement, Mr. Cecil Danby,' said she, still continuing to examine her flowers, and occupy herself with their arrangement. 'You have made fair progress. You have almost mastered the most difficult of London lessons,-to subside into a fraction of the multitude, and satisfy yourself with being a mere link in the chain of society. Those who pretend to more, will never become even that. You have no right, at present, to individualize; but must live and move, and have your being, in the life, movement, and sensibility of the mass.'—'In one respect, I certainly feel with the mass!' cried I, with warmth; 'in my adoration of—' 'My carriage is at the door,' interaddration of ______ by caringe in the tack, incrementally larger; 'and if you have no better acknowledgment to offer for my graciousness than such platitudes ___' 'Your graciousness !__' I claculated, with an appropriate sigh of reproach. Don't treat it too lightly,' she replied; 'for it is more the result of my indulgence, than of your merits. You are doing pretty well. You have learned to dress simply, to ride a quiet hack, and place yourself in the background of the picture. But you have still worlds of wisdom to acquire. You talk too much; you laugh too much. Your teeth are good; and your spirits high; but this does not suffice as an excuse for being heard in company, when others, with greater minds and smaller voices, are compelled to silence by your chattering."

Cecil now falls in love with a nameless beauty, and allows himself to be sneered out of the passion he whas contrived to communicate to its object. From that time forward he is doomed to shipwreck in all his ventures of affection. Many are the vicissitudes which befal him. In one page Fate throws him into contact with a brilliant gipsy girl at Venice-in another leads him into a less exciting flirtation, with a "femme incomprise" of Paris, a lady who is at a loss for sorrows and sensations -in a third philosopher thus becomes an impostor; and by the more metallic than acceptable in the social inter- makes him a prisoner to a German lady, of

Cecil Danby, we take leave to say, would have no more admitted on his love-list, than he would have enrolled in the carte of his election her countrymen's union of roast meat and plum jelly. Returning home, after other adventures we care not to enumerate, he once again falls in love with the daughter of a pushing baronetess. We must, in passing, introduce this lady :-

"Her greenish-gray eyes, fringed with black lashes, her white skip, her expressive lips, united their cloquence with her cheerful, joyous, youthful voice, to impart a charm to conversation pretending to nothing beyond rational common-place. But retional common-place is, in the long run, that which pleases most. Wit keeps one too much on the alert to watch whether the shafts it launches attain their mark. Humour makes one nervous, lest it should degenerate into coarseness. Refined wisdom op-presses one with a sense of inferiority. Originality is a pretension that renders one critical. But plain. rational, common-sensical conversation, uttered by an agreeable girl, beside whom one is sitting in a comfortable cozy corner, wraps one round with consciousness of comfort and repose. One has no fear of being startled, no dread of being quizzed. C'est une nourriture saine et abondante. fancy a long winter evening cheered by such a companion, with the aid of a good fire, good tea, and the last good novel."

Again the clubs and the coteries raise their eye-brows; and again the coxcomb draws back -as if a coxcomb could doubt his own taste, and his own power to elevate whomsoever he condescended to !-Helena, by a sudden and a brilliant marriage, beats him at his own weapons, and gets a coronet and a fool. Rumours pass about that the marriage might have been n happier one; but Cecil Danby easily satisfies himself, and goes yachting with some agreeable friends. Here is their return to England :-

" The Mereparks were in high spirits because about to be reunited to their children and park palings ;-I, from the force of sympathy. The tide took us in at dusk. The cheerful lights of the city were gleaming in all directions; and the familiar cries of an English crowd greeted us as a friendly salutation. On arriving at the hotel we were eager for dinner; hailing as delicacies those much contemned simplicilies of cod and oyster sauce, —partridges and panada, —and other items of English fare, which would make Paris die of an indigestion. Merepark and I resolved to make m carouse of it. I never felt in higher glee. I had a charming autumn before me; first a week at the Royal Cottage, -next a capital party for pheasant shooting at ____ Abbey; and after roughing it for a few weeks, one feels that the smooth sumptuosities of a lordly establishment are not altogether unenviable. As we were to start early, Lady Merepark wished me good night when she retired from the dinner-table; and Merepark and I ordered a fresh bottle of claret, drew our chairs closer to the fire, and began to give way to the feeling of social communientiveness, which the first fire of the season is sure to inspire. England is the only country in the world where men shut out the chaste creation, and prose over their wine; which I conclude is what renders our morals so superior to the residue of civilized Europe. On that occasion, we indulged. We talked over adventures of our old Downing Street days, and laughed over events of more recent occurrence at Palermo, till we neither of us saw any fault to find with our claret, a proof that we did not see very clearly,_Nay, having persuaded Merepark, who though now on dry land, was half-seas-over, to indulge me with a drinking song he had learnt at

from a rollicking Spanish muleteer,-the room began to be filled with shapes resembling those that clustered round the loneliness of St. Anthony !-- ] have little doubt that Byron, when galloping halfmad, half-intoxicated, through the pine-woods, after solemnizing those terrible obsequies of Shelley, felt much as I felt that night !- I know not what else prompted me to blaspheme as I did, all that was ood and fair, in my confidences to my companion. If in Satan's memorandum-book be enregistered all whom more presently, and whom the genuine the abominable falsehoods interchanged between man and man, on such occasions, I suspect the account will contain many a grievous crime unwhipped of justice. Merepark's stupid mandlin wonder and applause encouraged me to exaggeration, till I began to describe all sorts of imaginary adventures with graver of Callet and the periods of poor little Matt. Lewis. Heaven forgive me ! At last, it was time to retire. The fire was burnt out, the wine was drank out, the candles were about to, follow their example, and disappear also.-We went laughing and pushing each other up stairs, like two silly schoolboys. Everybody was in bed in the house, but the drowsy waiter who had sat up to give us our bed candles. When we reached No. 4, Merepark, after several ineffectual attempts to turn the handle of the door, blundered in, wishing me good night; while I proceeded towards the end of the corridor, to the room where, before dinner, I could just remember having washed my hands. I suppose the wine I had drunk did not tend to increase the clearness of my perceptions,-for, having reached the one I conceived to be mine, I threw it open with violence, bursting in, to take possession of my territories. An exclamation of 'hush!' was the first sound that saluted me; unnecessary, however, for the startling spectacle before me sufficed to paralyze my faculties. It was the chamber of death,—a gorgeous coffin,—two gorgeous coffins,—with lights burning at the head, and domestics in deep mourning, keeping watch over the dead :- Sobered by the awful spectacle, and deeply ashamed of my intrusion, I was retreating in haste. Already the waiter was at my heels, with apologies, explanations, and offers to conduct me to my own room. 'They had said nothing about the body, thinking it might be disagreeable to the lady to sleep under the same roof with a corpse. But they could assure me it was only there for the night. The funeral had arrived late in the evening, and was to be embarked early in the morning for Ireland. The bodies were on their way to my lord's family vault in the county of Limerick.' I had scarcely reached the threshold of my own door, when the fellow made this communication. Staggering to a chair, I had just strength to demand the name of the family seat in the county of Limerick,-I had not courage to pronounce that of the dead.- I think the butler said Craig's Castle, sir; but my Lord Wolverton has another seat in __ * * * * I heard no more!_Helena, my Helena! While I was > ment must have shaken the heavy folds of her pall!" We cannot allow our readers to part from 'Cecil' under the painful impression which the above scene must create. A glimpse at the "Charlotte" of the story will perhaps be as good a medicine for their sadness as the book offers. We will not exhibit her when in the agonies of dinner; for the reader doubtless, like Byron, loves not to see a pretty woman gorge: and apropos, Byron's friend-the real Cecil Danby-would never have so minutely chronicled the feeding scene, as our 'Coxcomb' has done. Here is a picture of the defiling her innocent name, by words that ought to have festered my lying lips, she lay dead_dead_within my reach! The uproar of my senseless merri-lazy hour after the gross meal:-

"A casual observer might spend six months in Germany, particularly in Rhenish Germany, and carry away an impression that the men were never without pipes in their mouths, or the women with-out knitting-needles in their hands. I once saw the body of a drowned woman taken out of the Rhine, round which five anxious individuals were clustered, labouring to minister to its resuscitation. Not one of them dreamed of removing his pipe from his mouth, while the work of life and death was proceeding under his hands! Nay, I once saw a fair Tedescan exposed to the soliciting of a lover, eloquent as Mephistopheles, impassioned as St. Preux, tender as Romeo, enterprising as Lovelace, and handsome as Antonin de Noailles,-who proceeded the while with her lambswool-stocking, as industri-I do not say onsly as the witch of the Cancasus! who it was :- the name of the parties is nothing to the purpose; but she plied those two long, black, as Rochefoucault's maxims or the elder daughters of Lear,-should ascribe the imperturbability of the heroine to lack of merit in the hero, I beg to add, that I have seen in the Hof Theater of Vienna, (the central heart of German civilization,) a gentle creature weep Danubes of tears over the sorrows of Thekla or the woes of Amalia, then, almost ere the curtain fell, certainly before the bodies were cleared from the stage, quietly re-assume her confounded knitting-needles, as though they contained balm for her wounded feelings! As to me, I swear that if Cleopatra had invited me to sail with her on the Cydnus, and under her purple canopy chosen to amuse herself with knitting, even though the stocking or brace were destined to Cecil Danby in lieu of Mark Antony. I should have dropped asleep while watching the hitching of her fair hands and jerking of her majestic elbows. By all this, my public will be induced to conjecture that I had some difficulty in keeping my eyes open under the influence of the evening sun, the buzzing flies, the two o'clock dinner, the Rhenish wine, and the detestable stitchery upon which the blue eyes of Wilhelmina von Schwanenfeldt were rivetted, while I tried to make it intelligible to her that the individual scated by her side on the sofa, and usually divided from her by the width and Andernach pavement of a street, -was nearer akin to her in all the brighter sensibilities of the soul, than the stamping Herr Bau-Bergund-Weg-Inspector, or any other native of the land which wrote Werter, and luxuriates in sausages and small beer. I poured out my soul in a happy mixture of French, English, German, Latin, and gibberish; and as she had sufficiently comprehended the same when I tried to make her understand that I did not eat apricot-sauce with my fois gras, I thought she might prove equally intelligent when I talked about the stars and the flowers, Schatzchen, heliotropiums, kindred souls, the music of the spheres, the immortality of love, and all the other little nothings-at-all with which the Cupids of the banks of the Rhine tip their arrows, as Camdeo, on those of the Ganges, tippeth his with bees and rosebuds. At every fresh outburst of sentiment, Wilhelmina gently raised her eves from her kniiting, and fixed them upon me,-large, dilated, and blue as one of Wedgewood's saucers ;_then, letting them fall again upon her quilt, as once more I launched forth into those rhapsodies which, from the days of Jupiter of Alemena, to those of Dr. Dionysius, ever strove to shake the foundations of conjugal fidelity, -gently uplifted them once more, at the conclusion, as a wax doll at the instigation of the wire wherewith her little lady silently uncloses her glassy eyes."

As a specimen of the philosophy scattered here and there throughout the work, we shall string together a few passages:—
"One might fancy all the little boys one meets

were heirs apparent,
For them, the Tyrian marrey swimmeth: and all the little girls, countesses in embryo. They are not only clothed in purple and fine linen, Flanders lace and Oriental cashmeres, but we hear of nursery governesses, nursery footmen, the children's carriage, the children's pair of horses! Now that Turkey is brought down from her stilts, I am of opinion that the only despotism extant in Europe is the nurseryarchy of Great Britain, with its viziers and janizaries, head nurses and apothecaries, ladies doctors and Lilliputian warehouses."

"A sensation is a vulgar triumph. To keep up the excitement of a sensation, you must always be standing on your head, (morally speaking,) and the attitude, like everything overstrained, would become fatiguing to yourself and tedious to others. Whereas, to obtain permanent favour, as an agreeable wellbred man, requires simply an exercise of the understanding.

"I abominate monasteries. Two things peculiar to the cloister are my especial detestation: the smell of human fustiness,—and the aspect of human hypocrisy. We have done: the fault of the work is oversmartness—it is like "an apple pie made all of quinces." The smarterings of quotation from classical authors are out of place, if they had any other purpose than to mystify the reader as to the authorship. On the same principle has the honourable Cecil—by way of anticipating the criticisms his quince-style was sure to draw down -transplanted into his preface a bond fide passage, if our memory serve us right, from The Times, in its review of Michael Angelo Timarsh.

German Literature. By Wolfgang Menzel. Translated from the German, with notes, by Thomas Gordon. 4 vols. Oxford, Talboys. THE growing popularity of German literature seems to call for some comprehensive view of its principal features for the use of English readers. Detached portions of the subject have indeed been presented to them of late years by various competent hands; but, with the exception of Taylor's Historic Survey-which was both prejudiced and incomplete,-no attempt has hitherto been made towards a general summary of the whole. The translator of the work now before us appears to have considered M. Menzel's essay as likely, in some measure, to supply this deficiency; and it must be allowed that the choice was recommended by the comprehensive nature of the treatise, as well as by its lively style and moderate volume. It is moreover a work which has, for various reasons, excited no little attention in Germany; where the author is known as a man of considerable attainments and more than common ingenuity.

These, however, are not the sole requisites belonging to a task of this nature. It is perhaps hardly to be expected that all should be united in an individual writer: the industry to gather and arrange the mass of details; the quickness of capacity to apprehend the character of dissimilar productions; the judgment to select, and the feeling to admire, what is excellent in every kind: and, above all, the clearness of an impartial eye, undimmed by anger or prejudice; and an utter forgetfulness of selfish or personal tendencies. And yet without such qualifications no satisfactory performance of the history of contemporary literature can be expected.

Paradoxical as the idea may seem to be, it may nevertheless be questioned whether for such a task a foreigner completely instructed is not better fitted, in many respects, than a native. The absence in him of any party bias, and his exemption from the heats of literary strife, may more than compensate for his defects in minute and subtle perception; and the very distance from which he surveys the subject renders its larger features relatively more distinct than they appear, of letters to his notions of political and social qualities. We believe him to be, although pas-to one who views it more nearly at hand. That the best native histories of literature have been written of the past, by men of retired lives, and independent of other authorship, seems to confirm this view. Such were the labours of Tiraboschi and Antonio; and yet, for general clearness of summary, and liberal criticism, we are disposed to attach a higher value to the productions of men like Ginguené, Bouterwek and Sismondi, who wrote their literary historics as foreigners.

The author of the Essay now under review (for it does not profess to be more), is far from possessing the equanimity which we have inisted upon. His peculiar temperament, and the events of his personal and literary career have made him an enthusiastic partisan; and have inured him to continual warfare. caustic reviewer, an eager politician, and a sententious essayist, he is not the guide we should implicitly follow in a path which leads us into the midst of those with many of whom he has for the last ten years been at deadly feud. His early vexations as an exile on political grounds have left a soreness of temper, which rankles in all his reflections; and in the various literary contests which have busied him since his return to Stuttgart, in 1826, he has committed himself to opinions which cannot but stand in the way of an impartial notice of his country's literature. It was therefore to be expected that he would compose a brilliant polentic treatise, rather than a faithful history; it is at all events certain that the work now before us cannot be accepted as such. As the production of an ingenious and original mind, remarkable for activity and boldness, it will be read with pleasure-the severity with which he censures and ridicules, and the sarcastic wit which seasons his invective, will render it attractive to many whom a calmer writer would tire: but the work will rather mislead than assist the student, if indeed the colours with which Menzel has depicted his subject do not altogether deter him from seeking to approach it more nearly. The effect of the whole is feverish, abrupt, and discouraging; it; is rather an angry lecture, addressed by the author to his own countrymen, than an account from which the foreign reader can derive either comfort or instruction.

This is not the only circumstance which impairs the usefulness of Menzel's treatise. His own disquisitions on the several topics under which he has classified the matter of his book, -religion -education -history -philosophy-poetry, &c .- occupy by far the largest part of the work; and, with very few exceptions, the notices of those who have written on these subjects are hardly more than an enumeration of their names, accompanied with a word or two of praise or blame; so that little can be gathered from them, by one who has no previous knowledge of the authors, beyond a notion of Menzel's own views on the several heads of this classification. Some principal names, such as Schiller, Goethe, Schelling, Tieck, &c., are treated more at length; but even of these he rather dilates on the alleged general character and tendencies, than particularizes their works. There is moreover some apparent caprice in his distribution of notice amongst the authors cited;

—a few lines are all that he can spare for Richter-while half a chapter is bestowed on Tieck-and Börne occupies as many pages as he gives paragraphs to Hoffmann or Wieland. In act, the writers who do not furnish matter for the illustration of his particular views are despatched in general with a very hasty survey, however emment their literary deserts may have progress, appears to warp his judgments in a manner which cannot fail to perplex the student. The defects which are lightly touched in some writers, are discovered with little justice in others, and visited with great severity. We do not object to his eloquent defence of Wicland's morality, or to his gentle mention of the levities of Thummel and Langbein, until he surprises us by harsh denunciations of the immorality of such authors as Goethe and Schlegel; and his unsparing ridicule of the sentimentalists loses credit with the reader, when he finds the absurdities of Justinus Kerner mentioned with respect, and abundant eulogies bestowed on Pückfer Muskau!

Amongst the objects of his severity may be cited the eminent names of Voss, the Schlegels, Schulze, Johann von Müller, Hegel, and Zschokke; but he has chiefly distinguished himself by bitter hostility to Goethe, whom it has been his constant labour for many years to depose from the place awarded to him in the general estimation of Germany. In this unsparing warfare, the accusation of systematic immorality of a want of true original genius-and of almost every defect, redeemed only by beauty of form, are brought against his writings; and the man is denounced as an Epicurean, a hollow aristocrat, as the pattern of political baseness, and a designing corrupter of the health of his country's morals. Nay, he is even made responsible for the most inconceivable matters, such as the vagaries of Bettine, and the suicide of poor Charlotte Stieglitz. The very excess of these denunciations may awaken a suspicion of their injustice; it is however out of our power to examine them here, and it may suffice to say that they have found no echo in Germany, save amongst # few dissolute and worthless men. The accusation of Goethe on the ground of his aversion to political strife, has however been so often, and, as we think, so unfairly urged, that we cannot refrain from quoting his own eloquent words on this matter, uttered a few days only before he closed his long and laborious career. They are recorded by Eckermann, as follows :-

"If the poet will effect anything in politics, he must devote himself to some party and as soon as this takes place, he is lost as a poet; he must bid I farewell to the freedom of his spirit, to his unchained energy; and draw the hood of contracted prejudices and blind aversion over his eyes. The poet will love his fatherland as a man and a citizen; but the home of his poetic energies and actions is the good, the noble, and the beautiful-restricted to no particular region; these he embraces and portrays wheresoever they are found-as the eagle, hovering with a free glance from land to land, asks no ques tion whether the prey on which it swoops may roam in Saxony or in Prussia. And what then is meant by loving your country?—what do you mean by patriot labours? When a poet has toiled throughout m long life, to assail mischievous projudices, to remove illiberal notions, to enlighten the spirit of his people, to purify their taste, and to ennoble their thoughts and feelings - what better than this could lie do ?_arc not these patriotic exertions ?_ You know that I commonly take no heed of what they write concerning me; but still it comes to my ears; and I well know that for all the pains and toil of my long life, there are people who count these as nothing, because I have refused to take part in political conflicts. To please them I should have become a member of some Jacobin club, and preached assassination and bloodshed! But let us say no more on this wretched subject, lest in protesting against injustice I should myself become unjust!"

Until it shall be proved that all men, whatever their several proper gifts may be, are bound to labour in the same vocation, we must take leave to consider this vindication as conclusive, sionate, thoroughly sincere, and the fire of his might have been made equally expressive, and would indignation is kindled by what he imagines, assuredly have looked less like flattery. indignation is kindled by what he imagines, however erroneously, to be hostile to the welfare of his country. He has done good service in denouncing the profligate crew of writers styling themselves "Young Germany:" his dissection of much that is sickly, false, and affected in the writers of these and of former times, is no less wholesome than happy; and the warmth of his feelings lends uncommon beauty to the eulogies which he bestows on the few whom he delights to honour, and who, it must be said, are in general worthily chosen. His portrait of Schiller is equally true and beautiful; indeed, there are fewpieces in the Germanlanguage more eloquent and striking than the passage which he consecrates to the memory of that great poet and noble-hearted man. His expositions of the various parts of his subject are in general masterly : the work abounds with lively illustrations and acute remarks; and his style (a rare merit in German prose writers) is concise and pointed. In short, the work, with all its failings, must be mentioned with respect, as the production of an ingenious, sincere, and diligent man, whose very deviations from sobriety and fairness are extenuated by the evident honesty of feeling whose warmth has led him astray. But we must repeat, that he is the last author to be selected as a guide by those who are not already well versed in German literature.

The irregularities and defects of Menzel's

Mr. Gordon's translation appears to be on the whole respectably performed, although in places the meaning of the author is not clearly rendered; and not a few instances of haste or carelessness may be found, especially in the two concluding volumes. The notes which he has appended to the text, chiefly describing the authors cited, would have been a useful addition, but for the gross inaccuracy of the printer, who has made such havoc, with dates especially, that no reliance can be placed on them. There is hardly a foreign word or quotation which is not wrong printed; and the execution, as far as correctness is concerned, is altogether discreditable to the press in an university town.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

Corse de Leon, or the Brigand, a Romance, by G. P. R. James, Esq., 3 vols.—A spider's thread, strengthening as it lengthens, would hardly be more surprising than the phenomenon presented by Mr. James's later novels. This is an increase rather than a diminution of power; a concentration, not a dilution of incident. 'Corse de Leon,' in short, is decidedly one of the best of the whole long series, and ought to be especially welcome to those who have proved that a love for romance is not extinct, by their friendly reception of its predecessors. To state the reign of Henry the Second, of France, as its period,—the exploits of M. le Marechal de Brissac's army in Savoy and Piedmont, as having suggested the east of some of its main incidents, and the melancholy death of the monarch as affording that scenic close which novelists love to arrange, is all we shall do towards indicating the texture of the story. Those who are ennning as regards the fabrication of historical fiction, will perceive that such indication neither includes the main prop of the intrigue-the Brigand who gives his name to the novel; nor its pair of willains, whom we may announce as the Count de Meyrand and the Marquis of Masserano; nor its pair of lovers, whom we may also name as Isabel de Brienne and Bernard de Rohan. Court life, intrigue, and pageantry in old Paris-brigandage and captivity among the mountain fortresses of a pic turesque country—and true love, as pure from all the grosser passions, as Mr. James nover fails, of honourable purpose, to paint it—what more could gentle reader desire? Nothing, save that so well-contrived and stirring a story should have been spared a lengthy dedication, so needlessly flowery and verbose as Mr. Impas has a span good for prefer to Corne desired. Lengthy dedication, so necessity howery and vertices common. To such we would offer our as Mr. Annes has seen good to prefix to 'Corse de that there is no common sense so very common as Leon,' in the form of a letter to His Majesty the king of the Belgians. Six lines—nay, six words, are obtained, it is as great houses are built, by putting

The Domestic Management of the Sick Room, &c., by A. Todd Thomson, M.D.—No one will, we imagine, deny, that the author is correct in thinking a work on this subject to be wanting in medical literature. No one who has ever practised as a physician or surgeon, but will be ready to de-nounce the ignorance, and still more the conceit and presumption, of nurses and friends, as among the most formidable obstacles to professional success. As far as regards the mere hireling nurse, the public hospitals afford a great practical school, which provides a few persons not very far below the requisite qualifications; but their services might be rendered more extensively useful, if to their coarse experience, a regular course of theoretical instruction were added, and pains were taken to note and to develope in the individual those moral qualities which are not less essential to the character of a good nurse, than an acquaintance with the routine of ordinary duties. With respect to friends and relations, the case is less It will be long before females, more especially, shall receive any physiological instruction to fit them for the discharge of their parts as mothers and wives; and there is too much reason to believe, that if an honest and conscientious schoolmistress were to introduce her pupils to the bed-side of sickness, and accustom them to the sight and management of disease, it would be made matter of serious complaint, as compromising their safety. We are thousands of leagues away from common sense and good feeling on such matters. In the meantime, Dr. Thomson's work may afford instruction to such persons as add to a naturally strong intellect, good dispositions, a sense of duty, combining with the faculty for reasoning, self-prompted and independent. It embraces the two points of moral conduct, and of matter-of-fact detail, which go, as we have said, nearly in equal degrees to constitute a fit and serviceable attendant on the sick. We will not take upon ourselves to say, whether the information it affords be all that is wanted, or that the subjects have, in all cases, been chosen with equal knowledge of the necessities of the case; but the volume, taken as a whole, may be read with profit by those whom it concerns, and will afford an useful addition to the library of the young wife and mother.

The Creed of St. Athanasius proved by a Mathematical Parallel.—We should not have noticed this precious piece of absurdity had we not happened to see it lie on the counter of a respectable bookseller, who evidently thought he was placing a choice thing under his customers' eyes. There is a tendency in some minds to attempt making numerical mysteries, which is a annoying to the mathematician as the theologian; and the latter, though offended at the presumption and disgusted with the tendency, does not see the abuse of the instrument employed so clearly as the former. There was one Peter Bungus, who in 1618 published mysteries of numbers, and who, when he had made the number of the Beast out of Leo decimus, with an M to spare, found out, after much puzzling, that this odd M stood for mysterium, which he says comforted him greatly. This was Bungus the first; the author of the tract with the above title is about Bungus the fortieth, in order of time, and Bungus the millionth in absurdity. What will the mathematician say to the mathematical symbol of infinity ( $\infty$ ) raised to the power of ffor the Father, multiplied by m (the coefficient of the human nature) and raised to the power of s for the Son, and mised to the power of g for the Holy Ghost? This is enough for a specimen; we have no wish to annoy any one of our readers more than justifiable exposure compels us to do. The only thing which this tract proves is, that the author himself knows nothing of the infinitesimal calculus. All infinites are equal, is his notion: to the mathematician not a word more need be said. Judging from the respectable place in which we saw this trumpery exposed for sale, and from other things, we suspect that some persons have that mysterious notion about the powers of mathematics which was once very common. To such we would offer our assurance together very large numbers of little bricks. one who goes to the roof, and sees an immense prospect, need not make a mystery of the reason why, for if he will only look as he goes down again, he will see all the little bricks and the mortar which joins them together. They may depend upon it, that whenever a person talks mysteriously of numbers, or proposes to make results out of numbers which are themselves anything but numbers, he is, if honest, very ill informed, and bungose. If, therefore, any one should say that at the top of the high tower, called that of exact science, people stand on the air, the most unmathematical reader may undertake to inform him that he is wrong; that those who stand at the top are on the highest stones, which rest upon the next highest, and so on, until the lowest rest on the ground; which ground is there, because it is God's pleasure that it should be there, and for no other imaginable reason that our faculties can reach. The ground of the mathematics is made of notions common to all men, such as that if A be B and B be C, A is C-two straight lines cannot inclose a spaceand the like. No creed, no opinion, no simple question of external fact, ever was or can be settled from the consequences of such axioms unaided by knowledge drawn from other sources: all the mathematics in the world could not demonstrate the existence of a single blade of corn, or one of its uses or pro-

The Combustion of Coals, and the Prevention of Smoke chemically and practically considered, by C. W. Williams, exhibits a popular view of the nature of combustion. The author's object appears to be to point out a method of economizing fuel, by so regulating the furnace in which the fuel is burned, that sufficient air shall be admitted to consume the whole of the combustible matter, without carrying any portion away in the form of smoke. There is more than theory in his idea, that "smoke consumers" are visionaries. We have exemplified in the treatise, a custom which is becoming now too prevalent—viz. that of ascribing to mere popular authors, originalities which the latter have borrowed from primary or secondary sources, and have clothed in a new garb. Thus we are told (p. 93) that Dr. Reid proves "that gases of different densities do not mingle rapidly"—a fact proved before the birth of the alleged demonstrator. Again, plagiarism is supported at p. 18, where the reader is informed that a series of analyses of coal is given in an unknown review, without any notice of the original source,—the Annalen der Pharmacie, and the Newcastle Trans-

Practical Introduction to Greek Accidence, by T. K. Arnold, M.A.—This is a useful, because a very practical introduction to the study of the Greek language; in some places the author has created needless difficulties by his affectation of German phraseology. Without at all entering into the discussion of the relative out at all energing into the discussion of the relative merits of Saxon and Latin derivatives, we think that the attempt to supersede the latter by such substitu-tions as "word-building" for "construction" is a very hopoless enterprise, and furthermore not worth the trouble of a struggle, even if it had a chance of Mathematical Dissertations, by J. R. Young.— These are—1, On the Theory of the Co-ordinate Signs;—2, On the Curvature of Surfaces;—3, Proof of the Incommensurability of the Circle (which we think defective as it stands, though it might perhaps be completed);—and, 4, On Sturm's Theorem. The last paper contains a method of abridging the labour of using Sturm's celebrated theorem. Another had been proposed by a writer in the Penny Cyclopadia, and each, we imagine, is the shortest in some cases. A reduction of the labour of Sturm's theorem, or a completion of Fourier's, is the grand desideratum in the theory of equations at present, and Mr. Young has done something towards the former; but it is Recollections, Etc. Miscellaneous Poems, by J. J.

Jonson.—The 'Recollections' refer to the author's travels, and the 'Miscellaneous Poems' are, for the most part, classical and mythological. We are tired of characterizing; and this author shall be his own best interpreter. The following poem from the latter division of the volume, "writes" itself "down" so expressively, that any description of ours would be more feeble and less courteous :-

The Mermaids.

I see them now—but hist!

O'er the face of the waters
Those sea-born daughters Are moving along,
To the voice of song,
Enshrouded in robes of mist!

I see them now—but hist!
Mine eye is grown bolder;
I mark each white shoulder;
I see each fair bosom,
More fair than peach blossom;
Ah! save I'm a visionist!

An: seet than now—but his!

Such sweet notes are swelling,
They seem from the dwelling
Of seraph on high,
In the blue, blue sky!
Each maid is a lutanist!

I see them now—but hist!
The lute-tones are blending With the voices ascending;
Oh! no one can tell
Of those wild notes' swell;
Not one, save an amorist!

I see them now-but hist ! 1 see them now—the mast Each lovely maiden With bright locks haden, In beauty is stealing, New beauty revealing; Oh! list to those sweet notes—list!

I see them now-but hist! 1 see them now—but list!
Lo! her fair long tresses
Each maiden she dresses;
Whilst sportively singing.
O'er the waves they are springing,
And in marvellous mazes twist!

And in marretious mazes twist

I see them now—but hist!

They are calling on me

From the waves of the sea—

"Child, child of clay,

Come away! come away! Thou canst no longer resist !

I see them now—but hist!
f am coming, I come
To your fairy home;
I am mad with the charms, I spring to the arms
Of the maidens with robes of mist!

Guides to Trade and Service .- Since our last notice, there have been added to the series_The Tailor_The Shoemaker, 2nd part_The Shepherd_ The Ploughman, and The Poultry Maid.

Books for Children .- The Americans beat as in books for children-as we have this day felt while looking over a heap of such literature, and remembering how often on similar occasions, Miss Sedgwick, and Miss Leslie, and others of the Transatlantic sisterhood, have lured us back into our childish days and interests, by their earnest manner of narration and their simple appeals to feelings which abide with all of us, from the cradle to the coffin.—Yet most of the English books we shall enumerate belong to the better class. The first is Chivalry and Charity; It is so well-imagined contrast, between what is showy, and what is genuine in greatness. Many years ago, we heard Miss Jewsbury declare that she had planned such a little work, to be called 'Conquerors and Benefactors, which was to appear in the short-lived 'Juvenile Library.'—

Is the book, then, before us a confection from her sketches and rough materials? If so, they have been carefully combined and wrought together: if otherwise, the coincidence is singular.—Miss Strickland's 'Alda' comes next on our list, it being a historical tale of the captivity of the warlike Prince Aldagern and his young daughter Alda in Rome, after the defeat of Boadicea. The style is far too resonant and magniloquent.—The best part of Bible Stories from the Creation to the Conquest of Canaan, by G. M. Bussey, are the wood-cuts by Marlin, which illustrate them. Over these children will hang for the hour together, and a vivá roce explanation by the mother, or the passage read aloud from Holy Writ, will be fifty times more acceptable and impressive than any lettor-press more formal or diluted.—It is enough to say, that Anne Parker's Selected Publes and Moral Maxims in Prose and Fersa are here in a second edition.—The 'Farig Bower' belongs to another tribe of books for children; it is a tale, intended to illustrate the virtues of truth and sincerity—and the heroine, Grace Leslic, is a capital example: only her thoughtfulness and tenderness of conscience are a trifle too wire-drawn. Though we are not fond of stories for the voung which turn upon exhibition of such deceit and mennness as ripen. illustrated by the Lives of Bertrand du Guesclia and John Howard. This is a well-imagined contrast, between what is showy, and what is genuine in greatness. Many years ago, we heard Miss Jewsbury declare that she had planned such a little work, to into worldliness, we were unable to lay this tale down till we had finished it.—' The Orphan,' and ' Summer Rambles and Winter Anusements, are more directly instructive, by the references they contain to the wonders of nature. Lastly, the "Hymns and Sketches in Verse," are an imitation of Mary Howitt's manner, but want Mary Howitt's freshness or poetry.

UNDINE

Undine, liebes Bildchen Du, Seit ich zuerst aus alten Kunden Dein seltsam Leuchten aufgefunden, Wie saugst Du oft mein Hertz in Ruh! DE LA MOTTE FOUQUE.

OH! lovely tale of wonder and delight, How dost thou mirror woman's inmost heart ! Undine,-tender, fond, yet wayward sprite, How full of touching consciousness thou art! As woman's from the world, thy lot is borne In that fair island from the mainland torn !

Too glad ... too blest, low at thy Huldbrand's feet To rest, thy crystal palaces thou leavest; Timing thy motions to the wave's soft beat, No more the lake-dew'd, moss-sprung flowers thou weavest:

Yet, with thy very joys thou sport'st the while, Oh! gentle being of the tear and smile!

Hither and thither, playful as a child, Scattering the world-wide waters at thy will, Threading the mazes of the forest wild, So rulest thou, whom none have power to still; Until at last, a weed upon life's stream Thou'rt thrown, and givest thy freedom-for a dream !

A dream of soul!-How lovely then wert thou When first the spiritual gleam thou caughtest, When watching, with foreboding heart, the brow Of him thou loved'st, that mystery thou taughtest Which round thy young life hung !- Thenceforth to thee

The world of tears thy watery world must be!

Meekly thou served'st in joy and in distress Him whose loved head was on thy breast reposing, Though lending sadness to each fond caress Despair's Black Valley round thy steps was closing;

Till, whelmed at last beneath the Danube's flow Thou sunk'st, and every wave sobbed wee-wee

Beneath the bubbling fount of that great deep Thy truth lay hidden where the source was welling,

Never to wake from out its sorrow-sleep, Till o'er thy soul the last wild grief was swelling, When thou didst rise, - a column of pure light, A fountain of the heart that flows from Sorrow's sight!

Oh! radiant shower, that, weeping, didst enfold All thou hadst loved in one long, last embrace, How sunk thy spirit as that lip grew cold Which, pressed to thine, its holiest resting-place___ Sunk in a kiss to death !_Oh! lot too high For aught on earth, of such sweet showers to die!

Wept out of life by love's own heartful tears, On his chill bed thou laid'st him, ne'er to rise: There still, where o'er his rest the soft mound rears Its grassy head, thy pure wave circling lies: Still, fondly clasping, flows thy Fountain-ring, Oh! Martyred Truth!—Oh type of Love's eternal spring!

And martyred thus, like thy fond faith and thee, Is woman's worship, from her heart outpouring. Too soon from childhood's pleasures does she flee, The idols of her youth no more-adoring; And, drinking truth from Love's pure fountain-bowl, Yields up her freedom-for a dream of soul ! ELEANORA LOUISA MONTAGO.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

(We are indebted to the friend to whom it was addressed, for leave to publish the following letter.)

Sucz, 20th Oct, 1840. Your letter of the 18th January, 1840, which was destined to give me so much pleasure in Adwa, was most unaccountably delayed, five months, on the road, probably by the proverbial slowness of some Arab captain; and as northerly winds prevailed in the Red Sea, I had no opportunity of answering for a long time.

of instruments all the way from London to Abys-sinia. Will you be kind enough to tell the Major that this little pamphlet arrived most seasonably to revive my magnetic zeal! The very next morning I observed in Adwa the dip and absolute variation. Unfortunately, my method of observing the intensity requires two observers, and I lost my amanuensis shortly after completing my Suez observations, so that I have done no magnetic work either at D'Jiddah or Mussawwa'. Your pretty little magnetic charts, by Gauss, Erman, and Sabine, have not yet come into my hands; I need not say how much they would relieve my mind, which is greatly puzzled for want of some work, de professo, on magnetism. While we are collecting insulated observations abroad, your philosophic meditations are building them up into compact theories at home, which at the same time that they satisfy all preceding observations, evolve new ideas in the traveller's mind, either to detect their error or to bring them to " greater state of perfection. It is on this score that your kind gifts in magnetic news will not, I believe, be totally lost on me.

I have had the happiness to meet in A'den Lieut. Yule, your magnetic observer, and we proceeded to observe the dip. Unluckily, in Robinson's instrument the lenses are so adjusted that none of our eyes could bring them to focus, on account of the interrening glass plate. Mr. Yule's barometers were all broken, so that I could not, after refitting my own, ascertain their index errors. I hail with joy the establishment of an observatory in A'den, because Cape Guardifin, close by, was, according to M. Arago, one of the best points on the globe for observing the hourly variations of the needle. Indeed, when I offered four years ago to solve the question of the change of sign in the variation near the equators, that savant only preferred the Brazilian coast, where I ultimately went, because there was no protection on the then comparatively little known coasts of Arabia and eastern Africa. If your observer turns his attention to the tide phenomena, which appear to follow no known law in A'den, he may elucidate some obscure points in our present theories.

Nothing gave me more pleasure than being at liberty, by your provident generosity, to dispose of a copy of the chart of S. W. Arabia, in favour of M. Fresnel, who was longing for it, as giving a sure basis for his oral-information geography of the interior terra incognita. As I wrote it to M. Fresnel at Jiddah, one copy was the gift of a friend, the other that of an intelligent savant.

The Athenaum has given you an account of my proceedings as far as Adwa. I observed my latitude five or six times on the road, and when once amidst the mountains of the highland I connected several spots by triangles, or by latitudes, and azimuths, measured directly from the sun. Still very few of my triangles approach to an equilateral; and my base, being less than 3,000 yards, may excite your pity at the smallness of my operations, when contrasted with the superior quality of my instruments. Still I did my best, and hoped to carry my triangulation on to Gondar, when the chief, Oobee, stopped our progress, by threatening the most degrading species of violence if we ventured to proceed. We returned despondent towards the coast: at Dögra I parted from my brother, and proceeded to the convent of Beezen, less to see that celebrated spot, than to connect from its insulated mount, Mussawwa' on the coast, with Mount Börk'ak'o on the highland, by a latitude and two azimuths, for those spots are invisible from each other. As I drew near the convent an accident deprived me of one of my eyes. Having bled myself to keep down the inflammation, I commenced the steep ascent, but was so overpowered with fatigue, and so awkward at seeing my way, that I arrived too late for a set of meridian altitudes: moreover, the sun was overcast at the proper moment for azimuths, and I was obliged to confine myself to a set of bearings. I have thus had the mortification not to connect in a satisfactory manner, Adwa with the coast.

At Mussawwa' I met a slave from K'opa on the great lake, who had come through Waratta, Some years ago, I had the good fortune to meet the great lake, who had come through Waratta, Major Sabine at Trinity Collège, "in our own dear Seedama, Enarya, and Abyssinia. He named several Island." However, as I had then only good will, but neighbouring nations with their appropriate positions, no deeds, before me, I scarcely expected he would so according to the cardinal points. He spoke far remember me as to send Prof. Lloyd's description | Ilmorma, which nobody but myself could understand; and as extreme suffering prevented me from writing or dictating, I have lost every item of his rare and precious information. Days of pain and blindness ensued until I arrived in A'den, up my present misfortunes, one of my barometers has been broken by the awkwardness of a meddling Abyssine, and another, my favourite time-piece (the last I bought from Dent), was stolen out of my lodgings in A'den.

Providence has, however, left me some consolation, my observing eye, although weak, is not un-serviceable, and I may still be a one-eyed traveller. now purpose to attempt entering by Tujura into Shawa, where, as far as astronomy and magnetism are concerned, I shall tread everywhere on new ground.

I now venture, although with considerable diffidence, to make m proposition, which I beg you will submit to the Council of the Royal Geographical Society. I would request that learned body to send me at A'den, by the earliest opportunity, 1st, a pocket chronometer by Dent, his watches of that sort being, I helieve, the cheapest, and certainly not the 2nd, A barometer constructed for measuring mountains upwards of 14,000 feet high, without ivery, or any wood save dry fir or deal, as all other woods warp in the singularly dry atmosphere of Abyssinia. The index error of this mountain barometer should be carefully given by reference to the Royal Society's standard instrument, as I would then be enabled to fill up again and verify my two Fortin's barometers, one of which I would leave at the A'den observatory, as its cistern fills up entirely at 12,000 feet altitude: unless this barometer could be sent out by a person going by A'den, and accustomed to travel with a barometer, it would be better to send it empty; and at all events it should have two spare tubes. The mercury should be pure, and put into an iron bottle, with two screwed stoppers. I bought such a bottle at Jones's, Charing Cross, but I took it without examination; and as the iron was porous, all the mercury was lost before I arrived at Marscilles. 3rd, Three or four small sized thermometers well purged from air, and divided on their own glass tube, if possible, in the Centigrade divisions. It matters not if the divisions are made immediately after filling the thermometers, as I have a good standard instrument, and even thus correct the slow rising of the freezing point. I would rather have these thermometers all of one size, as follows: length of the thermometer 150 to 160 millimetres, outside breadth of tube 2.8 millimetres, inner diameter or bore 0.2 millimetres, diameter of the spherical ball 7.0 millimetres, divided from -9 or 12 to +75 or 80 grades. I am thus particular as to size, because two such thermometers would fit in my case of portable instruments, which being carried on a servant's back is always ready. I have broken two such thermometers, and having only one left, I would ask at least for one as a necessary instrument, for observing the hygrometric state of the air by a wet bulb and a dry bulb; it is recommended, I believe, to have the two thermometers as alike as possible. I have made a great many observations of this sort, particularly when measuring barometric heights, as the latest formulæ require a knowledge of the dew point. 4th, Tables for determining the dew point from the abovementioned observations of two thermometers. August, of Berlin, has published these in a rather unmanageable double folio sheet, which I tried in vain to procure, in order to avoid a tedious calculation: perhaps these tables have been printed in England in a more convenient form, or if not, the spirited Editor of the Athenceum might copy them in one of his numbers, and render a service to many hundred observers,

In submitting this proposition to the Royal Geographical Society's Council I shall trespass so far on your complaisance as to beg you would develope the following motives:-I cannot go to Europe myself without losing much precious time: I have already given proofs of my exertions and ability as a traveller, and am able and willing to pay the interest and damages of the instruments if lent, or their whole price, if necessary, on my return to Europe. I could easily have these instruments purchased in France, but the delays, and perhaps the impossibility of finding a proper person to take charge of them, as we have no gentlemen going out to the India service, would protract their arrival beyond the reasonable time for forwarding them to me. I shall willingly accept any equitable conditions attached to my receiving the aforesaid instruments; and lastly, in case of my premature demise in foreign parts, I join a codicil to my will, which will reimburse very nearly, if not entirely, the outlay made by the Royal Geo graphical Society. In case my propositions are not accepted, I beg you will destroy the inclosed deed; if they are acceded to, I would still further trouble you, to get a letter directed by the proper authority to the political agent at A'den, requesting him to deliver or forward the instruments to me.

In the course of my last voyage I have observed my longitude by eclipses of 21's satellites, lunars and Imar occultation. These last alone are satisfactory for a stationary observer, but they occur seldom, and, as I have an admirable theodolite, with its vertical circle reading off to five seconds, I regret much not having Prof. Struve's method for determining longitudes by zenith distances of the moon and a star near her. This method is barely mentioned in one of the last numbers of the London Geographical Journal, and I have written in vain, in August, 1839. to Prof. Schumacher, who did not seem acquainted with it. This method was used in 1828 by the officers of the Russian expedition to Turkey, and the longitudes of several places are given in the Royal Geographical Society's Journal with a degree of exactness which has raised ighly my desire to employ Strave's formulæ, as I have Mr. Baily's excellent tables with me. Perhaps some of your friends of the Royal Astronomical Society might favour you by communicating this method, which is peculiarly fruitful within the tropics, and in that case I doubt · not that some computer of the Northern Almanac might find a spare moment to copy it out for me.

The White Nile Expedition had left Cairo when I arrived there last month (in quest of medical advice). M. Arnoux, . Frenchman, is the only European in it, an i he was robbed of all his apparel near Keneh: this did not however prevent him from proceeding. The rise of the Nile has been enormous this year, i. e. 24 14 cubits at the Meckyas. The observatory at Boulack was the last of the Pasha's improvements, which was suspended by the recent events.

Believe me, &c.,

OUR WEEKLY GOSSIP.

Our readers will be pleased to hear of the safe arrival of Captain James Ross at Hobart Town. A few hasty lines only have as yet reached London, but we believe that full particulars of his voyage may be shortly expected. The Expedition remained six weeks at Kerguelan's Land; and it is understood that Capt. Ross there found a good supply of excellent coal.

A few weeks since, we took occasion to direct the attention of the Professors of Architecture to the subject of Competitions. Since then, a letter has been received at the Institute of British Architects, and read at the last meeting, from M. Vaudoyer, a Corresponding Member, and distinguished French architect, in which this subject is incidentally referred to. We take the following abstract from a report in the Civil Engineer: ... M. Vaudoyer described a species of competition, which took place in the time of Louis XVI., who was anxious to complete, in a becoming manner, the Palace of Versailles, then un-finished. Upon the recommendation of Monsieur Le Comte d'Aiguillers, five of the most celebrated architects of the period were introduced to the King, who explained to them his views and wishes, and called upon them to assist him by their taleats in rendering the Palace of Versailles worthy the nation. He assigned to each of them 12,000 francs as a complimentary sum, and 3,000 francs to cover expenses, and gave them eight months to prepare their lesigns. The in ention was, when Messrs, Chalgrin, Heurtier, Antoine, Peyre, jun., and Paris, the architects chosen, had completed their designs, to have them exhibited to the public, and then examined by a jury, consisting of the candidates themselves and four other architects. This committee were to make individual reports on each, and a general report on the whole, and to select the two best for recommendation to the King, who was to be at liberty to choose any parts of the other designs, so as, if expedient, to form a new one, composed of the chief beauties in the whole number, and which was to be carried into execution by one or both of the two selected by the jury. The designs were made and paid for, but never exhibited; for the storms of the revolutionary epoch began to cloud the horizon of the arts, and the scheme, so admirably projected, had no positive results. But M. Peyre published his, in his volume of designs, 1818.

The literary announcements for the coming season, in addition to those already recorded, are not very numerous. The following promises are from Albe-marle Street:... Six Months with the Chinese Expedition, by Lord Jocelyn, late Military Secretary to the Chinese Mission; 'Russia, under Nicholas the First,' translated from the German by Capt. Anthony C. Sterling; 'An account of the Gypsies of Spain, with an original collection of their Songs and Poetry, and a Vocabulary of their Language, explained in Spanish and English, by George Borrow, Esq.; Researches in Asia Minor, Pontus and Armenia, made during a Journey through those countries in 1835-6-7, by W. J. Hamilton, Esq.: 'A tries in 1835-6-7, by W. J. Hamilton, Esq.: 'A Descriptive Tour in Lombardy, Tyrol, and Bavaria,' by John Barrow, Esq.: 'A Sojourn on the Shores of the Baltic,' by a Ludy; and 'Fragments from German Authors,' translated by Mrs. Austin.

In a former number we had occasion to notice the satisfactory doings of the Awlescombe choir-Miss' Head's collection of psalmody giving us occasion. We have since received tidings of musical activity from a quarter in which it is yet more agreeable to contemplate it. Where, indeed, in Old England, ought Easter lands and Christmas carols to be well "Taking adsung, if not at Stratford-upon-Avon? vantage of the breaking up of the old parish choir, which consisted of about twelve girls with the genuine Warwickshire dialect," says a welcome correspondent, - when, two years since, the nave of the church was put in repair-several ladies and gentlemen, and a number of the more respectable townspeople's children, formed themselves into a choir, for the purpose of singing the Church service without accompaniment;—the old inefficient organ having been sacrificed. This choir is now sixty-one strong; strong enough, too, in proficiency to perform the full cathedral service, including an eight-part anthem by Dr. Boyce, on the occasion of the re-opening of the nave in last October. A spirited subscription is going on for m new organ, and for the completion of the repairs and decorations of the church which remain vet to be accomplished. The building has been entirely fitted up with oak stalls having carved finials-the pulpit, reading, and clerk's desks, are of Painswick stone. A new roof of carved oak, suggested by a fragment remaining of the elder one, has been placed over the centre aisle; galleries of corresponding style have been erected. A stone-groined ceiling to the chancel, and the restoration of the old pointed roof to the transepts, are still wanting to the completeness of the edifice. Why should not the Why should not the example from the Berlin Sing Academie, the members of which have cleared their beautiful Concert Hall from debt, by giving occasional performances? We cannot but think that a call to Shakspeare's town, would be answered by the musical amateurs and the Midsummer idlers of England with zealous alacrity; and should be glad to see the precedent established, as good for the art of music and good for the manners of the people.

Mr. Bana and Herr Schumann's programme for the forthcoming German Opera at Drary Lane, is hardly less rich in announcements than M. Laporte's. We are promised Madame Stöckl Heinefetter, Mdlle. von Hasselt, Mdlle. Lutzer, Madame Schröder Devrient, perhaps Madame Fischer-Achten, Herr Haitzinger, Herr Tischatchek, Herr Staudigl, per-haps Herr Erl: in short, either certainly or conditionally, all the best rocalists of Germany. We may add, that as Mdlle. Löwe, who did not take root in Paris, is expected in London, it would seem more probable that she should be heard on the German, than on the Italian stage, as certain of our contemporaries have amounced. We are promised for directors have announced. We are promised for directors of the music, Herr Ganz and Herr Marschner: the latter artist will be peculiarly welcome to us, as we hold his operas in good esteem. Among works not performed last season, are announced Weber's Oberon, and Meyerbeer's 'Les Huguenots,' to be got up under the direction of its composer. The last is indeed a promise, which, with all our musical hearts, we hope may be fulfilled.

The fourth Concert of the Paris Conservatoire is said to have been a peculiarly good one: comprising Mozart's Symphony in a Dinor, and Beethoven's in A,—a scene from Gluck's 'Armide,'—a cantata by a M. Bienaimé, and one of Viotti's violin concertos, played by M. Schwæderlé, one of the hundred clever young violinists of Paris. Would that London had half as many!—At the theatres, the dramas of Her Royal Highness the Princess Amelia of Saxony are obtaining great vogue. Her comedy, with the bold title of 'La Malade Imaginaire,' bus been brought out on Molière's own boards—the Theatre-Français; and the Gymnase is playing her ' Fiancée du Prince.

The Paris papers mention the death, in that capital, in the eighty-fifth year of his age, of Claude-François Chauvean-Lagarde, the courageous defender of Marie Antoinette before the Revolutionary tribunal, and counsel for Charlotte Corday. He was ennobled by Louis XVIII.; and died in the office of a Conneillor of the Court of Cassation, which he had held since 1828 .- Letters from Vienna also annonnce the death, in that capital, of a most fruitful writer, Joseph Aleys Gleich, at the advanced age of 79. The works of Herr Gleich would form, so far as the .... in themselves. He is stated to be the author oftwo hundred and fifteen romances_the greater number of which are in two volumes, while some extend to three, four, and even five. He has produced more than three hundred theatrical places, besides many other works of less importance, and co-operated actively in the publication of several literary journals. He has left a fortune of 220,000 floring (22,000%. British), wholly the produce of his literary labours, and a larger sum than any German writer, not excepting Goethe himself, ever amassed by the pen, and an only daughter to inherit it. To this obituary aunouncement, we may add that of the death, at Paris, of the Comte de Forbin. Director of the Royal Museums, and a Member of the Academy of Fine Aris .- An election which has recently taken place at Pesth, in the Historical and Philological Section of the Hungarian Royal Academy of Sciences, exhibits the progress of liberal principles in a very pleasing light, and is worth recording, for the suggestions it involves, amongst ourselves. The unanimous choice of the body has fallen on an Israelite, Gabriel Bloch,—a young linguist, who has distinguished him-self by a Hungarian translation of the Bible, with notes and commentaries. The right of delivering public lectures being incident to the quality of member of that body, the new Academician has commenced a course on the general affinity of languages,-and his chair is surrounded by all the distinguished personages in the capital, whether for rank or learning. The Prince Primate of Hungary, two bishops, and many of the clergy, both Catholic and Protestant, are particularly mentioned as amongst his audience; -but it is not stated if any common-councilmen be of the number.

By letters from Mayenne, it appears that that town is about to do honour to herself, and service to humanity, by the erection of a monumental statue, within an edifice to be expressly reared and consecrated for this object, to the memory of her illustrious son, the Cardinal Cheverus, archbishop of Bordeaux. It can scarcely be doubted that abundant contributions will be offered to this testimonial to the most apostolic of bishops, and one of the most excellent of men. Monuments like this can do no honour to the dead, but much to the men who raise them; and nations can never exalt themselves more in the eyes of their neighbours, than by offering homage to true greatness, like that of the Cardinal Cheverus. The reader cannot do better than refresh his memory as to the life and labours of this excellent man, by reading once again our notice of him, No. 607.

Our readers are aware that an action was brought by the Duke Charles of Brunswick against M. Gisquet, ex-prefect of police, for defamation, on the ground of certain passages in the recently published Memoirs of the latter, which we transferred to our columns (Athen. No. 689). The Chamber of the Cour Royale, before which the complaint was, in the first instance, carried, pronounced against the Duke; who appealed from its decision: and the Chamber of Correctional Appeals has confirmed the original judgment, in so much thereof as relates to the facts and observations published by M. Gisquet, in reference to the Duke in his characters of m politician and a pretender; but for the ex-prefect's allegation, that the Duke had rewarded his agent Allouard with a false diamond, the Court of Appeal has given three hundred francs to his Royal Highness as damages.

On the Production of Heat by Voltaic Electricity,' by J. P. Joule, Esq.-The inquiries of the author are directed to the investigation of the cause of the different degrees of facility with which various kinds of metal, of different sizes, are heated by the passage of voltaic electricity. The apparatus he employed for this purpose consisted of a coil of the wire, which was to be subjected to trial, placed in a jar of water, of which the change of temperature was measured by a very sensible thermometer immersed in it; and a galvanometer, to indicate the quantity of electricity sent through the wire, which was estimated by the quantity of water decomposed by that electricity. The conclusion he draws from the results of his experiments is, that the calorific effects of equal quantities of transmitted electricity are proportional to the resistances opposed to its passage, whatever may be the length, thickness, shape, or kind of metal which closes the circuit: and also that, cateris paribus, these effects are in the duplicate ratio of the quantities of transmitted electricity; and consequently also in the duplicate ratio of the velocity of transmission. He also infers from his researches, that the heat produced by the combustion of zinc in oxygen is likewise the consequence of resistance to electric conduction.

'On the action of certain Inorganic Compounds when introduced directly into the Blood, by James Blake, Esq. M.R.C.S.—The present paper is a continuation of a memoir read at the Académie des Sciences of Paris, in 1839, and entitled, 'Effets de diverses substances salines, injectées dans le système circulatoire. + After some preliminary remarks, the author gives a list of the various saline substances of which he noted the effects when they were severally injected either into the venous or the arterial systems, arranged according to the nature of those effects. He finds, in general, that all the salts having the same base exert similar actions when introduced directly into the blood. He carefully inquires into the phenomena apparently arising from the direct contact of each of the substances above enumerated with the animal tissues; and more particularly into the effects produced on the heart, on the muscular and the nervous tissues, and on the pulmonary and systemic capillaries. The general conclusion which the author is led to draw from these researches is, that there exists a close relation between the chemical properties of the substances experimented upon, and their physiological effects: his experiments tending to prove that, when introduced into the blood. substances which are isomorphous exert similar actions on the living tissues. He notices, however, two exceptions to this law: namely, the similarity of the actions exerted on the pulmonary tissue by the salts of lead with those of silver, although these salts are not isomorphous; and also the action on the nervous tissue of the salts of ammonia being different from that of the salts of potass. But he remarks that the oxide of lead bears a close analogy to the oxide of silver in its relation to organic compounds. The general fact previously announced by the author in his memoir read to the Academy of Sciences at Paris, namely, that salts with the same base have analogous

· Contributions to Terrestrial Magnetism, No. 2, by Major Edward Sahine, R.A .- This paper is the second of a series in which the author purposes to communicate to the Royal Society the results of magnetic observations in different parts of the globe, having for their object to supply the requisite data for deducing the numerical elements, corresponding to the present epoch, of the general theory of terrestrial magnetism. It consists of two sections; the first comprises the observations of Cant. Belcher, R.N., and the officers of H.M.S. Sulphur, at twentynine stations on the west coast of America, and the adjacent islands, between the latitudes of 60° 21' N. and 18° 05' S. The second contains a new determination, by the same officers, of the magnetic elements at Otahoite, made in consequence of the discrepancies in the results obtained by previous observers, and of a note in M. Gauss's Allgemeine Theorie, in which Otaheite is spoken of as a highly important station for the future improvement of the calculations of the theory. Abstracts are given of the original observations which are deposited in the Hydrographic Office of the Admiralty, as well as a full detail of the processes of reduction by which their results have been computed. The values of the horizontal and total intensities are expressed in terms by which the results of observation are immediately comparable with the maps of MM. Gauss and Weber in the 'Atlas des Erdmagnetismus.' By an investigation into the "probable error" of a single independent determination of the magnetic intensity with Hansteen's apparatus, derived from the data furnished by Capt. Belcher's observations, the author shows the extreme improbability that the differences in the results obtained at Otaheite by Messrs. Erman, FitzRoy and Belcher, should be occasioned by instrumental or observational error. They are also far greater than can, with any degree of probability, be ascribed to periodical or accidental variations in the magnetic force from its mean value. The only known cause adequate to their explanation is what may with propriety be termed Station error; that is, local dis-turbing influences, in an island composed chiefly of volcanie rocks, and where the spot of observation selected by the different observers may not have been precisely the same. By a reference to the magnetic survey of the British Islands, the occurrence of station error is shown to be frequent in countries of far less decided igneous character than Otaheite; and that its existence may always be apprehended where rocks of that nature approach to, or rise through, the superficial soil. The absolute determinations of fixed observatories are as liable to station error as those of the magnetic traveller, since no continuance or repetition of the observations can lead to an climination of the error; it consequently presents a practical difficulty to the proposed determination of the elements of the theory from exact observation at only a few selected positions on the globe. The remedy is to be found in the combination of fixed observatories and magnetic surveys: the observations of the survey, being made in concert with, and based on those of the fixed observatory, will be furnished thereby with corrections for the secular, periodical, and accidental variations of the elements, and will consequently determine mean values: and a proper combination of the mean values thus determined, over a space sufficiently extensive to neutralize district anomalies, as well as those of a more strictly local character, will furnish, in their turn, a correction for the station error, if any, of the fixed obser-

On the Calculation of Attractions, and the Figure of the Earth,' by C. J. Hargreave, B.A., of University College.-The principal object of the calculations contained in this paper is to investigate the figure which a fluid, consisting of portions, varying in density according to any given law, would assume, when every particle is acted upon by the attraction of every other, and by a centrifugal force arising from rotatory motion. That such has been the original condition of the earth has been assumed as the foundation of most of the mathematical calculations con-The following papers have been read:

of strata varying in their densities according to any given law. In solving it, the author follows the steps of Laplace as far as the point where the equation, known by his name, first appears. It has, however, since been discovered by Mr. Ivory, that the theorem of Laplace is true only of spheroids of a particular kind, and consequently it is to this kind that Laplace's solution of the problem is restricted. The method given in the present paper is not confined in its operation to any particular class of spheroids; the coefficients of the series into which the required function is developed being determined absolutely, and without reference to the form of the spheroid to which they are to be applied. The principal change consists in the different manner of treating the partial differential equation; and its integration, effected by the author, renders the analysis more direct, the operations more simple, and the theory complete.

ASIATIC SOCIETY.

A General Meeting of this Society was held on the 20th of February, Sir George Thomas Staunton, Bart. M.P. in the chair.—A sketch of the progress of discovery in Indo-Bactrian Numismatology, which, it was understood, would form a part of an extensive work by the Director of the Society, was read to the Meeting. The subject was of more general interest than that which usually attaches to similar disquisitions, from the extent and importance of the historical blank which the investigation has tended to fill up, a blank reaching from the invasion of Alexthe Great to that of Mahommed Ghori, a period of nearly fifteen centuries, in which the most important changes succeeded each other, both in the religious and political conditions of India, Persia. and Affghanistan. All that had been known of these regions during that long interval was that the great kingdom of Bactria had been overthrown by a race of Scythians or Tartars, whose power extended to the mouth of the Indus; and that when the Moham-medans invaded the East in the eleventh century, they found princes of Hindú race on the thrones of Sinde and Affghanistan. Within the last seven years, the discovery of vast numbers of coins has afforded means to combomite what was before little more than conjecture, and to fill up the unknown with names of dynastics and individuals, well defined, and in regular connexion. About a century ago, the only two Bactrian coins known, one of Eucratides, and one now known to be that of Menander, suggested to Bayer a History of the Bactrian Kingdom, which was published at St. Petersburgh, in 1726. Soon after, a coin of Euthydemus was added to the list; and in 1799, one of Heliocles. During the present century, further specimens of the same coins were sparingly procured from Russia and Persia; and a new one of Antimachus Theos, was added in 1822. But the publication of a memoir, by Colonel Tod, with engravings, in the Transactions of the Royal Asiatic Society, in 1824, forms an era in Bactrian history. Colonel Tod, during his residence in India, had made a collection of about 20,000 coins of all denominations; the greater part, it is true, of no interest; but several, quite new, and of great historical value. Many of these were then but imperfectly appreciated, their legends being undecipherable; but they are since ascertained to be coins of kings denominated Indo-Scythic, bearing the names of Kalphises, Kanerkes, Undapherres, &c. In 1830, General Ventura, an officer in the service of Runjit Singh, found several coins on opening an ancient monument at Manikyala, a village between Attock, on the Indus, and Jhelum, on the river of that name. Impressions in wax of three of these coins were sent by him to Calcutta, where they were seen, and described in the journal of the Asiatio Society, by the lamented James Prinsep, the Secretary to that Society, who had from his situation already learned to take an interest in Eastern numismatology, to which he subsequently gave so great an impulse. In 1822, Licut. Burnes visited Manik-yala, and obtained more coins. Dr. Swiney, at Karnal, followed the example; and these materials were published, and ably commented on by Mr. Prinsep, who, as yet, had no anticipation of the splendid results m which his researches would ultimately lead. In 1834, an accession of great value was made by the publication of a paper in the journal of the Bengal Society, containing an account of Mr.

Affghanistan; and had for some time been engaged. in connexion with Dr. Honigberger, in antiquarian investigations. In the year 1833, while in search of the site of the ancient city of Alexandria ad Caucasum, north of the city of Cabul, he had been rewarded by the discovery of very many ancient coins, which subsequently reached to the number of 30,000, from the same site, though when he wrote the above-mentioned paper his collection amounted to less than 2,000. The names of several Greek kings were added to history by Mr. Masson's collection, as Antialcidas, Lysias, Agathocles, Archebias, Pantaleon, and Hermaus. In consequence of a hope expressed in the second volume of the Bengal Asiatic Journal, that a precise account of General Ventura's discoveries might appear in its pages, that officer at once, in the most disinterested manner, made an offer of his collection to Capt. Wade, then Political Resident at Ludiana, who declined the offer in favour of Mr. Prinsep, to whom the coins were forwarded. Mr. Prinsep, with a liberality as creditable to him as that of General Ventura, while stating that he should be most happy to investigate and publish a full account of the collection, requested that the General would still consider it at his disposal. The honourable contest ended in Mr. Prinsep's acceptance of specimens of such of the coins as were in any numbers, and the remainder were returned. On a visit to Europe in 1838, General Ventura himself, while in London, presented to the Royal Asiatic Society some of the ese coins, and of a further accumulation which his first success had induced him to make. In 1883, several Indo-Sovthic coins were found on the site of an ancient city discovered near Behut, in the Doab, seventeen feet below the surface of the earth; and in the same place were found some of a peculiar type, with ancient Sanskrit characters. These were deciphered by Mr. Princep, who pointed out the identity of the character with that on the Allahabad column, which had not then been deciphered. The coins are of princes not before known; and, from their symbols, must have belonged to a period when Buddhism prevailed in India. Many of the Indo-Scythic coins which had Greek inscriptions on one side, had, on the other, legends in an unknown character, unlike any alphabet known. was a matter of some importance to read this alphabet; and the problem was resolved by Mr. Prinsep. The first account of his discovery, published with some hesitation in 1835, he subsequently perfected; and he succeeded in demonstrating that the language of the legends was closely allied to the Sanskrit, and might be termed Pali, or Prakrit. This was the last great labour which the declining health of Mr. Prinsep permitted him to engage in; and it was a worthy termination of the valuable labours through which he had prosecuted the subject with so much success; though it is to be feared, that the great amount of exertion which such researches necessitated (combined with his other numerous occupations), contributed, in m great degree, to shorten his valuable life. Such is the important character of the historical discoveries which the work of Prof. Wilson will lay before the world.

LINNEAN SOCIETY.

Feb. 16 .- The Bishop of Norwich, President, in the chair. The Marquis of Northampton was elected a Fellow, and Mr. G. Gordon, an Associate of the Society. A paper was read entitled, Observations on some little-known species of Polypiaria of the supercretacoous strata of Italy, by Signor Michelotti, of Turin, illustrated with examples of the genera.— J. Recves, Esq. presented specimens of a seawced, a species of Gigartina, apparently different from tenax and lichenoides, from which jellies are made in Japan; Clavaria entomorhiza, a fungus growing from the head of a caterpillar, and used medicinally in China; some remarkable galls; fruit of the stoneless Litchi; the sea-horse, from the China seas; edible birds' nests, both in a natural and prepared state; Lepas mitella, found at Macao, and used for food by th natives; a brick of Tartar tea dried in a cake, with the branches and leaves; and a ball of tea from Japan enclosed in a spathe of Zea Mays. Mr. Gould exhibited specimens of the Nanodes undulatus of Vigors, a kind of parroquet from New South Wales, remarkable for the beautiful shot-like spots of rich purple on the throat; with them was the original nest in the hollow trunk of a gum tree; they are the first living specimens that have been seen in Europe; a gigantic Truffle called native bread, and a specimen of fossil wood from New South Wales. Mr. Solly exhibited the supposed anthers of Ferns on a young frond of Cistopteris fragilis; several had burst and discharged their contents, composed of macus and minute granules.

ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY .- Jan. 4 .- The Rev. F. W. Hope, F.R.S., President, in the chair.— Donations of entomological works from Prof. Nordmann, Mr. M'Clelland, the President, and others, were announced.—Mr. Hope mentioned the expected occurrence of vast migrations of butterflies in South America, and referred to Holmes's account of Buenos Ayres, in which some of these migrations had been noticed. Mr. Schomburgk had also described several other such occurrences, in a memoir read at the Mr. Westwood made last meeting of the Society. some observations on the identity of the extraordinary little animals hatched from the eggs of the common oil beetle of this country (Melos proscara-beus), and the small parasites found on bees and flies, their identity having been questioned in the volume upon insects recently published, forming part of the Cabinet Cyclopædia. A paper was also read, by Mr. Westwood, On the Nomenclature of the Genus Chlorion Lates (Ampulex Jurina), which led to an extended discussion amongst the members present, on the employment of generic names, which had been previously used in other departments of science; and it was mentioned by Mr. Yarrell, that M. Agassiz had informed him of a calculation which had been made by himself and M. Decandolle, by which it appeared that no less than 300 generic names of plants, and 800 names of zoological genera required changing, having been previously used in other branches; and it was insisted upon by several members that the inconvenience which would necessarily result from the change of such a number of names would far overbalance the slight inconvenience at present felt in cases of such "double emplois," as the French term it.

Anniversary Meeting—Jan. 25.—The Rev. F. W. Hope, F.R.S. in the chair.—After the annual routine business had been transacted, W. W. Saunders, Esq. F.R.S. having been elected President for the ensuing year, it was announced that the prize of ten guineas offered by the Society, in conjunction with the Saffron Walden Agricultural Association, should be renewed, for the best memoir upon the caterpillar of one of the Nocteridæ which attacks the roots of the turnip, including the most advantageous methods of preventing its attacks, or of destroying the insects. The Rev. F. W. Hope also announced his intention of offering a prize of 10L, for the best essay on the insects which attack apple and pear trees, with the best remedies for their destruction. Members of the Society, agriculturists, horticulturists, and others, were invited to supply the Society with a notice of such species of insects as might be proposed as proper subjects for future prize essays.

Feb. 1.—G. R. Waterhouse, Esq. in the chair.—Mr. Westwood called attention to the state of the great picture by Sebastian del Piombo, in the National Gallery, as described by Dr. Waagen. The picture had been transferred to canvas, on which it was fixed with paste, which material is now attacked by insects, which were considered to be Anobium paniceum, an insect well known to attack preparations of flour. The plans suggested at a former meeting for the destruction of insects which attack paintings on panel or the stretching frames, would be inapplicable to the present case; and it would be very dangerous to saturate the back of the picture with any solution which would affect the paste, so as to render it unpalateable to the insects, or sufficiently strong to destroy them. Mr. Gutch considered that, in so valuable a picture as this, it would be most advisable to re-line the painting with fresh canvas, employing paste in which a little corrosive sublimate had been mixed. He had constantly used paste mixed with that material, and had found it effectual in preventing the attacks of insects. Mr. Waterhouse suggested that an air-tight frame, or flat box, should be placed behind the picture, a space of about an inch being left between it and the frame-work, and that the inclosed air should be strongly impregnated with Prussic acid, which, he had no doubt, would destroy the insceis.—A letter from the Rev. A. W. Grieshach was read, relative to the economy of the Bruchus granarius, which he had found to undergo its transformations within the pea and not in the earth.—The completion of a memoir on the Evaniidæ, a family of Hymenopterous insects, by J. O. Westwood, F.L.S., was read.

BOYAL INSTITUTION.

Mr. Alfred Smee delivered a lecture on the laws regulating the Voltaic deposit of Metals; or, in other words, upon the laws of Electro-Metallurgy.....He commenced by recalling to the recollection of his audience an experiment shown by Prof. Brande on previous evening, that the metals were thrown down from their solutions at the negative pole of a galvanic battery. The differences produced by variations in the galvanic current were next adverted to, and the reduction of the metal was shown in the same decomposition cell to be very different with different amounts of galvanic current. The lecturer next exhibited a solution of sulphate of copper of unequal strengths, in which two copper poles, connected with a platinized sliver battery, were placed, on the negative pole of which the metal was thrown down of different qualities. The general principle drawn from these experiments is, that the power of the battery or the galvanic power must be regulated to the strength of the metallic solution. The various kinds of deposit were next adverted to,-the black powder was shown by a long piece of platinized silver the reguline metal, the type of which was a ham-mered electrotype plate—the crystalline deposit, a plate of which broke to pieces with the slightest To obtain the powder, such a quantity of electricity in relation to the strength of the solution must be employed, that hydrogen is evolved from the negative plate in the decomposition apparatus. Three varieties of the powdery deposit were then briefly adverted to, as well as its application to the formation of a galvanic battery when deposited upon plates of metal. The reguline metal was shown to be obtained by regulating the power of the battery to the strength of the solution, so that hydrogen is below the point of evolution from the negative plate. This law belongs to all metals and all metallic solutions, and the fact was shown at the lecture with gold, silver, copper, and iron. The reduction of gold with relation to gilding was explained, and s silver spoon was gilt in the presence of the audience, with the potassa solution of the oxide of gold. Several silver forks and spoons, a sugar basin gilt of an excellent colour by this process, were exhibited, and the lecturer stated that it was coming into use at Clerkenwell, which would materially save the health of the workmen, who suffer severely by the mercurial fames of the present process. The reduction of silver was next exhibited from the ammonio carbonate, and several medals made in this way were shown. A large candelabrum candlestick, and other articles, were exhibited, plated by Elkington, of Birmingham, by a process patented by him. The reduction of iron was shown on m polished copper-plate, which was connected with the zinc of a small tumbler platinized silver battery. Whilst an iron nail was connected with the silver of the battery, the copper was put into a solution of the proto-sulphite of iron, and, on being removed, had all the appearance of a polished steel plate. The crystal-line deposit was next made the subject of examination: it was described to arise from a deficiency of electricity to the strength of the solution. The application of crystalline copper for ornamental pur-poses was briefly mentioned, and electro-coppered leaves, baskets, and plaster medallions exhibited. The lecturer next described the means by which the uniformity of the strength, and the acidity of the solution may be maintained; and stated the porous tube apparatus was not at all adapted for the refinements of electro-metallurgical operations. decomposition apparatus where a piece of metal, similar to that reduced, is made the positive pole, to he dissolved to the same amount that the metal is reduced, was stated to be best adapted for the electrometallurgist. A singular circumstance was noticed to take place on the reduced metal, in certain cases: from a lighter solution being formed, deep grooves or lines are produced, which leave intervening ridges, amounting in some cases to an inch or more in height. The means of overcoming these were briefly de-tailed; the most important being the position of the east, and several experiments were shown to elucidate this phenomenon. The regulation of the quantity of electricity may be effected by varying the power of the battery, either by increasing or diminishing its size or by altering its exciting solution. The size of the positive pole will be found, in all cases, to regulate with the utmost exactness the quantity of electricity, and therefore the state of the metal. Sometimes it is even necessary to diminish it to the smallest point, as in the reduction of gold. The distance between the poles and the temperature was noticed as affecting the quantity of electricity. Mr. Smee next described the adhesion and nor adhesion of the reduced metal to the surface on which it was deposited, to be owing to a film of air, which, being present, causes a separation between them, but when removed, adhesion cusues. At the conclusion he again particularly enforced the grand principle, that to obtain any requisite state of deposition, from any metallic solution, from any strength of solution, from any salt, the galvanic power must be regulated to the strength of the metallic solution.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

PHILBARMONIC Society .... That the present is a critical season for the future existence of the Philharmonic Society, no one can doubt. The Directors eem to be conscious of this, and resolved to meet the occasion with unusual energy. They promise us, most wisely, for the next Concert. Mendelssohu's 'Lobgesang,' the overture to 'Benvenuto Cellini.' Berlioz, and the second finale to Weber's beron,' At their first Concert, they caused to be performed, most carefully, the pieces, both orchestral and vocal, which made up its programme. The first symphony was Haydn's number 4: with this we were not familiar. The slow movement and minuet have all the freshness and fancy which make us, in those respects, place the composer even higher than the more renowned symphonist, Mozart. To-wards the close of the finale, however, there was an odd little passage played upon the pianoforte by the conductor, Sir George Smart, the rationale of which we by no means understood. The second symphony of the evening was Reethoven's, in a majorandante of which was encored. Some slight mistakes in the tempo of the several movements allowed for, the work went well. The overtures were less interesting, being those to 'Ulysses and Circe,' by Romberg, and Mehul's 'Joseph.' We never heard Madame Dulcken play so well, or the Philharmonic orchestra accompany a solo performer so steadily and sensitively, as in the same pianoforte Concerto by Weber, in E flat, which we mentioned a week or two since. The other solo was a violin performance by M. de Loffre. This did not merit a place in the bill of the choicest concert of London, seeing that there could be no novelty in an artist who may be heard nightly for a shilling at Drury Lane. Nor was the gentleman's playing superior enough to make us overlook so obvious a failure in judgment. The overlook so corrous a rainine in jagment. Alle vocal music was very satisfactory: bating a few misjudged ornaments, Miss Birch sang Beethoven's 'Ab perfido' very finely, with more dramatic energy than usual.—Mr. Bennett a beautiful song from 'Il Seraglio'.—and Miss Masson, Zingarelli's 'Sommo Cills Trans. Cicl.' The last performance could not be praised too much for dramatic conception, grandeur of style, and finish of execution. It was, in brief, the most admirable piece of singing by an English woman we ever heard. Mr. F. Cremer led, and Sir G. Sacat conducted, this Concert.

QUARTETT CONCERTS.—These began for the season, on Thursday week. The selections of music are always greatly to our liking; and it was particularly well done of Mr. Blagrove's party or Mrs. Anderson to bring forward Reber's graceful and clegant pianoforte trio,—his second; the work deserving a place in a classical concert, though Prench, in spite of its composer's obvious determination to write a work which should belong to no school but the best. The quartett we heard, which was Beethoven's well-known one in 18 fat, Op. 18, was neatly played: we wish we might say more. But this is impossible. Not only do the four artists want that electric touch of the composer's genius, which makes the executant, for a moment, assimilate himself with the creative artist; but there is also a tonelessness in the second doiln and viola, which renders impossible that mellowness of effect attainable only by an equal balance of all the four parts. Fineness of touch is not sufficient for the execution of chamber music; there must be also poetry of conception and sweetness of colour. The singers were, Madame Carndori Allan and Mr. Hobbs.

COVENT GARDEN.—A new and youthful candidate for dramatic fame, Mr. Lee Morton, was successful in obtaining the suffrages of the public on Thursday night, on the strength of the daring and tact shown night, on the strength of the daring and tact shown in a rifacimenta of characters and incidents, regarded as the hereditaments of play wrights, with the title of 'London Assurance.' Clever acting, and a perfect mise en scène, contributed materially to the prosperity of the "comedy;" but the adroitness with which the venerable personages of bygone times were tricked out in modern costume and phraseology, and passed off as representatives of an existing state of society, had a due share in so amusing the audience as to render them accessaries to the cheat that was put upon them. A couple of intrigues form the business the piece; but as the lady in one case was not quite married, and in the other only acts the part of a frail wife, no offence was taken : though there was no wit to set off against what might have been considered too glaring improprieties of situation, but for these saving clauses. Mr. Farren, as Sir Harcourt for these saving clauses. Int. Fatter, as in Turbulet Courtly, a modernized version of Lord Ogleby, personates me profigate old beau, affecting the airs and hairs of youth with a degree of finish that glosses over the grossness of the part. Mr. Charles Mathews, as Mr. Dazzle, a fashionable ad-Charles Mathews, as Mr. Dazze, a tashionate surenturer, whose sole capital is a large share of the 'London Assurance,' plays the counterfeit gentleman with a graceful case that would become the real character; and Mr. Anderson has the seemingly difficult task of denying his identity to his own father, and with only the loss of a cravat, and a slightly altered manner, passing alternately for himself and for another person: we say seemingly diffi-cult, because all rested with the audience, who acquiesced in the probability of a father not knowing his own son, nor a lady her lover, when he chose to assume a different air. Madame Vestris as Grace Harkaway, a rustic damsel with the arts of a townbred girl, and who is willing to resign herself and fortune to an old battered rake, because she has never been in love, but, as usual, falls in love with the first pretty fellow that comes in her way, plays with skill and fascinating address; but the character is not one suited to her talents. Mrs. Nisbett, on the contrary, as Lady Gay Spanker,—a laughing hoyden and dashing horsewoman,—revels in this repetition of her favourite part of Constance, in the repetition of her favourite part of Constance, in the Love Chuse, Her boisterous vivacity and spontaneous gaiety kept the house in good humour all through the evening; indeed, she is the life of the scene whether the large of the standard part of the scene whether the large of the standard part of the scene whether the large of the scene whether the scene whether the large of the scene whether th scene, whether she lures on the amorous old baronet seene, whether she lures on the amorous oid naroner with a false show of encouragement, or ridicules the helpless imbecility of her hen-pecked little husband—a character personated by Keeley with a quiet humour, and in a genuine style of acting, which we see too little of in the present day. Harley's part of a busy-body and pettifogging lawyer, is a disagreeable excrescence, though he raises a laugh by his gri-maces. Mr. Brindal, as a cool, discreet, and clever valet, and Mrs. Humby as a pert lady's-maid, are a choice pair. The comedy is so constructed, that one set scene suffices for the whole act; and the stage in each instance presents rather a realization than a mimic representation. The garden scene, with its bods of flowers, and the verandah entwined with creeping plants, and the drawing-room, with its superh furniture and fittings, are actualities: —the windows have blinds, corniçes, and curtains, as real and splendid as the chairs, tables, and ottoman. These solid accessories, moreover, are not only splendid, but in good taste. The comedy was announced to be performed every evening; and the author being called for, was led on by Mr. Charles Mathews, and excited surprise by his juvenile appearance. He is young enough to do much better things, if he will go to Nature for his materials.

Of all else that concerns theatricals our report may be brief. A little success goes so far both with audiences and managers that the task of chronicling noveltics, such, at least, as are worth notice, is a light one. The new suits for which dramatic authors "measure" the actors, are generally worn threadhare before they are laid aside; perhaps because it is supposed that if once put off, they could not be easily resumed. When will dramatist because the smalled children of the resumed. not be easily resumed. When will dramatists leave tailoring for the spoiled children of the stage, turning French doublets into English vests.and create real characters for the players to give life to, so far as can be done in these degenerate days? It seems worth considering, whether the practice of actors obtaining suits made to fit their peculiarities, does not perpetuate those distortions which the mirror of the stage now holds up to view, and reduce the comedian to a puppet, with one set of jerks, filling up the intervals of a raree-show. Between play-wrights, property-men, and actors, the Drama is in a parlous state; and now that the nuisances of promenade concerts and masquerades are about to give way to operas, Italian, German, and English, the spoken drama is not likely to be heard, or, if heard, not listened to, the witching charm of attraction rests with the sweet-sounding accents of her lyric sister. Instead of mentioning the drama, however, we might as well have said at once the little we have to say, namely, that Miss Kelly has opened her Thespian back-parlour again, in the expectation that the public will have so far forgotten her "Dramatic Recollections," as to be again delighted with listening to the anecdotes of her theatrical career, which she tells so cleverly; though now with all the disadvantages of a long interval of discontinuance, and, we regretted to perceive, ill health and enfeebled powers,—which were painfully ap-parent in her vocal efforts.—Late last week 'The King's Barber' appeared at the HAYMARKET, very showily dressed, but proved to be a very dull fellow, and an old stage-acquaintance, all the worse for a new face; indeed, but for Mrs. Stirling, who excited some interest for him by her earnestness, his company would not have been tolerable.—And at Covert Garden, the intriguing adventures of a gallant roung Captain of the Watch, and the equivocal situations and awkward dilemmas of a trio of amorous Flomings, amused the audience to their heart's content for an hour, without the expenditure of a par-ticle of wit, and with very little aid from the actors.

MISCELLANEA

Magnificent Public Work in the Island of Madeira.—[From a Correspondent, Dr. James Macaulay, Foreign Secretary of the Botanical Society, Edinburgh.]—In the Island of Madeira the Portuguese government is at present carrying on a great work, such as would do honour to any age and to any nation. During great part of the year that island is entirely free from rain. Even then, however, among the mountains, the clouds and mists furnish a perpetual supply of moisture, so that the river-courses are never wholly dry. This water, as it descends from the mountains, is collected and conveyed by means of Levadas, or artificial channels, through the cultivated grounds. The country is everywhere intersected by these rivulets, and the most perfect system of irrigation is thereby maintained. Some of these Levadas were formed by the first settlers in the island, in the beginning of the fifteenth century. The slaves of the early colonists were Moors and Eastern captives, and it may be that from them was derived a greater attention to irrigation, and a greater skill in its application than is generally observed in European agriculture. Many of the works connected with the irrigation of the island display remarkable enterprise and skill on the part of the natives, and of these the most conspicuous is that of the Rock of Rabaçal. At the head of a deep and narrow ravine which forms the commencement of the valley of the Ribeiro (river) de Janella, there rises a perpendicular rock not less than 1000 feet in height. An abundant supply of water flows from this cliff; partly in one large cascade sweeping over from the summit, and partly in the form of innumerable streams issuing from fissures in the face of the rock, and dripping down through the mountain shrubs by which the cliff is clothed. This water used to fall into an abyss at the bottom, whence it flowed along unemployed and useless through the ravine and valley of the Janella to the Atlantic. It was observed, that if the water could be intercepted in its descent, and conducted by art from the course in which nature directed it, it might be turned to infinite utility for the purposes of irrigation. Who had the boldness first to conceive the actual execution of the project, is not recorded. It appears to have been attempted at an early period of the history of the island, as there are at one place remains of some work of which no tradition has come down to us. In 1823 the Governor brought under consideration the importance of making use of these waters; but it was only in 1836 that the work was commenced. Of the extraordinary ability of the engineer under whose direction the work was planned, Captain Vicente de Paula Texeira, a native of the island, even those who have not seen the place must form the highest opinion from a simple description of the work. The height of the cliff I have stated is 1000 feet.* About 300 feet from the base, a horizontal channel has been cut in the face of the rock. sloping downwards and inwards, so that part of the water from above is intercepted in its descent, and falls into this hollow. The excavation extends round the face of the cliff for about 600 feet, presenting the appearance of a vaulted gallery, the roof of which is supported at intervals by pillars of the rock. The water flows along this channel, and is then to be conducted by an open aqueduct or Levada for the distance o six miles. Here another great part of the undertaking is in progress. A tunnel, which will be 150 fathoms long, is to be cut through the crest of a mountain ridge, by which means the waters of the rock of Rabaçal be conveyed from the north to the south side of the island, and will spread cultivation and fertility over extensive districts hitherto either entirely waste, or yielding a poor and precarious produce from the absence of irrigation. The channel on the face of the rock is now nearly completed, and the tunnel has been commenced at both extremities. In com-mencing the work, the operations were of an extremely difficult and dangerous character. It was impossible to reach the part of the cliff where the channel was projected by any means except by ropes suspended from above. Down this dreadful depth, with 300 feet of the precipice below them, the workmen were lowered; fastened to a little frame of wood at the end of the rope, and bearing instruments for boring and blasting the rock. When a mass of rock had been loosened by the handspike, or a train had been laid for blasting, it was necessary for the operator to get out of the reach of danger by pushing himself off from the cliff with his feet, and making for some tree or projecting point, where he secured himself till the explosion was over, and then returned to his labour. The workmen were moreover continually drenched by the streams of icy cold water falling upon them, so that they had to be frequently relieved, on account of their becoming benumbed with cold. It is gratifying to add, that notwithstanding the extreme danger of these operations (compared with which the samphire-gathering of Shakspeare's Cliff, or the birdhunting of St. Kilds, might be described as occupa-tions of little danger), only one fatal accident has occurred in the whole undertaking. And when we consider the extraordinary boldness of conception displayed in the design, the genius and ability with which it has been hitherto carried into execution, the difficulties and perils that have attended the operations, and the noble purpose of the undertaking, being not for mere ornament or fame, but for the permanent well-being and improvement of the country, we cannot but regard it as one of the grandest efforts of modern art.

Savings Banks.—It appears from the Annual Report of the Marylehone Bank, that no less than 2,815 new deposits were made during the past year, and that out of 12,680 deposit accounts, no less than 8,224 held balances of less than 51. The growing disposition of the working classes to provide against the casualties of life and the infirmities of age, is a source of gratification to all reflecting persons.

George Garrick, was affectionately attached to David, and held him in great awe; Garrick, when acting, was extremely nervous about any noise made behind the scenes, as it destroyed his effects; consequently, George was accustomed to parade up and down on the stage, and if any persons were talking, to exclaim, "Hosh! hush!" This was his constantabit.—The salary of George Garrick was considerable in the theatre, and it was more than once inquired, why, or for what, George Garrick was paid that amount? Charles Bannister in a moment solved that amount? Charles Bannister in a moment solved the question, "It is hush money," said he.—George Garrick usually inquired every night, on coming behind the scenes, "Has David wanted me?" On its being idly asked how George came to die so soon after the demise of his celebrated relation, the answer was.— David wanted him."—Memoirs of the Colman Famillu.

An Ever-burning Flame.—A paper was lately read the Royal Irish Academy, by Mr. G. J. Knox, "On a Principle for producing an Ever-burning Flame."—"A belief," he observed, "in the discovery of an ever-burning lamp appears to have been prevalent in all ages; and tradition informs us that lamps have been found in tombs, where they have con-tinued burning for upwards of 1,000 years, of which mention has been made in the works of St. Austin, Plutarch, Pliny, Ludovicus Vives, Baptista Porta, and Licetus. The Resicrucians, who laid claim to the knowledge of everything mysterious, pretended to have rediscovered the secret of their construction, which was supposed to have been buried in the tomb of their founder. Dr. Plott, in a treatise which he has written upon this subject, alludes to a lamp mentioned by St. Austin in his book de Civitate Dei, which was hung up in the temple of Venus; and to another found in the tomb of Pallas the Arcadian, who was slain by Turnus in the Trojan war, which continued to burn after its removal from the tomb and exposure to the air-proving that these lamps were not supplied from any bituminous source, or He considers the requisites for an volcanic fire. He considers the requisites for an ever-burning lamp to be,—a perpetual wick, which might be made of gold wire, or asbestus; and a perpetual supply of fuel, which he imagines the bituminous springs of Pitchford, in Shropshire, or the inflammable gases issuing from fissures in coal mines, would That such could supply fuel for a flame, so afford. long as the bituminous spring existed, or the gas continged to exhale from the mines, is evident; but it no more deserves the appellation of an ever-burning lamp, than does we fire arising from any volcanic source. The desideratum for such a lamp is, that it should contain, within itself, a renovating principle, such as, probably, does the luminous atmosphere encompassing the body of the sun, supposed by Sir William Herschel to be electrical. That electricity was the principle upon which such a lamp could be was the principle upon which stein a lamp could be constructed having occurred to me some years ago, I reflected upon the different means by which a constant light could be produced from this source, and concluded that, if by an arrangement of metals a thermo-electric current could be produced of sufficient intensity to decompose water, the heat produced by the burning of the two gases arising from the decomposiourning of the two gas and many the statement of the alternate metallic junctions, to continue the electrical current of the thermo-electric pile; while the gases, which in burning become aqueous vapour, might be condensed by passing through a long tube, through which being conveyed to the closed vessel in which the water had been originally placed, they would again undergo decomposition, recombination, and condensation. Such a thermo-electric arrangement has been discovered by Prof. Botto, of Turin, who has obtained decomposition of water from a series composed of a great number of wires of platinum and

To prevent the apparatus from acquiring in iron. fine the same temperature, the alternate junctions of the metals, to which the heat is not applied, might be connected with the pedestal upon which the lamp is placed; and the pedestal be either allowed to rest in a cold situation, or else be connected by wires with some extensive cooling surface."

Air contained in Snow .- According to Dalton, the quantity of oxygen in the atmosphere diminishes in proportion to the distance from the surface of the earth. Gay-Lussac, however, did not find this to be the result of his experiments—for air which he obtained at a height of upwards of 20,000 feet, contained the same proportion of oxygen as that pro-cured from the neighbourhood of Paris- M. Boussingault has found, in common with others, that air obtained from snow contains less oxygen than that of the atmosphere. But this holds good with regard to the snow of the Andes, as to that of Paris. He admits, however, that this may not be the composition of the air as it exists in the snow; because, in order to obtain this air, it is necessary to melt the enow; the gas of the flask comes in contact with the water, little if at all impregnated with air resulting from the melting: and it is well known that in such circumstances oxygen dissolves more readily is water than the azote, and that the air with which water is saturated is richer in oxygen than that of the atmosphere. M. Dumas and M. Boussingault are at present examining the composition of atmospheric air.

Railroad from Berlin to Vienna .- This project is confidently talked of at Berlin. It is said that three-fourths of the route, from Breslaw to Ratisbon, are already taken, and will commence next spring.

Fuel for Steam-engines .- A letter from St. Petersburgh gives some particulars of a new fuel, for steamengines, discovered or manufactured by a M. Waschinakoff, which offers, it is said, great advantages over coal. We have, however, heard of so many of these wonderful discoveries in our own country that we are a little sceptical_still it may be well to publish the facts as stated. The first experiment made, on a large scale with this fuel, to which M. Waschinakoff has given the name of Carboléin, was on board the English Steamer Syrius, on its last voyage from Cronstadt to London; and the results are given as follows:—A consumption of 4½ th. (English weight) of Carboléin per hour, for every horse-power of the engine, produced thirteen revolutions per minute, and yielded a speed of more than seven English miles per hour; whilst, on the same voyage, with 7 th. of English coal, of best quality, the wheel gave only twelve revolutions, and the vessel made no more than 63 miles an hour. The flame of the new fuel, says Captain Waters, who commanded the Syrius, was so great that they were constantly obliged to reduce it to one-third .- A cubic foot of the best Newcastle coal weighs 54704 fb., whilst the same measure of Carboléin weighs 55700 fb.—4,480,000 fb. of coal, the usual provision for steam vessels passing between England and the United States, occupy a space of 81.884 cubic feet; but 2,480,000 fb. of Carboléin, yielding the same effect, take only 51.694 cubic feet: so that the latter combustible would effect a saving of room to the extent of 30.190 cubic feet, available for merchandise or passengers. The freight from England to North America, and vice versa, being at the rate of 2s. 6d. per cubic foot, making 5s. both ways, the space economized would produce for the two passages, an excess of freight amounting in value to 7,547t, deducting from this sum 643t, for the greater price of the Carbolein necessary for the two voyages over coal, and allowing, besides, 1904L, to the account of any deficiency which might occur in filling up the space saved, with goods or passengers, there would still be a clear gain, at the lowest calculation, of 5,000l. by the use of the new fuel.

Ancient Seeds.—The other day, in sawing up a block of resewood, at Norway Wharf, Millbank, the workmen discovered a cavity quite in the heart of the block, within which some seeds were stored up. Mr. Arnold, the proprietor of the wharf having shown us part of them, we have ascertained them to consist of a species of nux vomica, and of some euphorbiaceous plant, probably Ricinus. The former was broken by the sawyers, but appeared as fresh as if newly gathered; the latter will be sown in the garden of the Horticultural Society.—Gardeners' Chronicle, CHARING-CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND.

THE NEGROLAND OF THE ARABS

EXAMINED AND EXPLAINED:

OR, AN INQUIRY INTO THE

EARLY HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY OF CENTRAL AFRICA. Illustrated by a MAP, &c.

By WILLIAM DESBOROUGH COOLEY. *

This Essay has for its object westablish the early geography of Central Africa on a solid basis. It aims at offering a clear and well-grounded explanation of the geographical descriptions of Negroland transmitted to us by Arab writers; and, by thus connecting the past with the present, at giving an increased value to the historical information derived from the same sources. The task here undertaken has more of novelty in it that may be at first suspected. Witherto no attempt whatever has been under to explain the Arab geography of Negroland by treating it as a whole, and as the immediate subject of investigation; yet no department of the wide field of literature stands more in need of critical labour, or appears more justly entitled to it.
